HITLER TELLS GERMANS HE'LL SMASH BRITAIN

Promises Full Retaliation For RAF Night Raids in Reich, With Bigger Bombs.

CALLS BRITISH 'PIRATES'

Pledges Huge Mass Attacks on Island Empire to End 'Stranglehold.'

(By United Press)

BERLIN — Adolf Hitler promised Germany today that huge mass attacks by the Nazi air force would "smash" Great Britain in retaliation for British bombardment "night after night" in the reich.

"Now, night after night," Hitler said, "the German air force will give them the answer. If the British air force drops bombs of 200, 300 or 400 kilograms, we will drop bombs of 800, 900 and 1,000 kilograms. We shall attack them in such mass that they will be smashed.

"We shall fight until one of us breaks and the victor will be the German reich."

Italy and Germany, the fuehrer declared, will see that in the future it is impossible for "one nation to get a stranglehold on Europe."

The fuehrer's speech followed a night of aerial attack and counter-attack during which Berliners huddled in air raid shelters for more than two hours.

Sharp activity of German and British planes occurred over Magdesburg, in western Germany, it was stated officially.

Hitler indicated also that Germany had not abandoned plans to invade the British Isles.

He was cheered when he said:

"When the British say, 'He doesn't come' my answer is 'Keep your shirts on. He is coming.'

"Whatever may happen, England will be smashed and the conflict can have no other conclusion," Hitler said in a speech opening the second winter relief campaign.

"We shall fight until one of us breaks—and the victor will be the German reich."

Hitler was introduced by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels who reported on the first winter relief campaign last year.

"The nuisance that makes it possible for one nation to blockade a whole continent, that permits a pirate state from time to time at its own sweet will to deliver up 450,000,000 persons to misery, must once and for all be removed," Hitler said.

"We are not going to let England decide at some time in the future again whether we

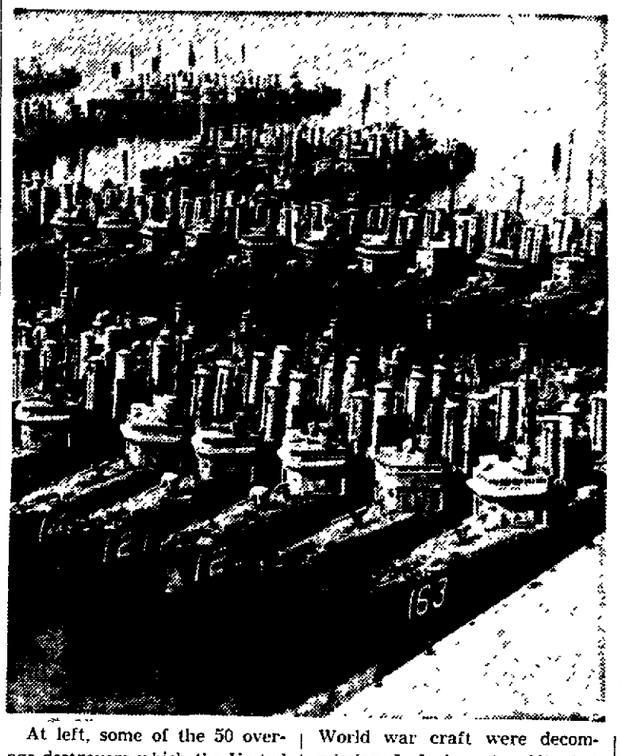
Britain Gets These Destroyers—U. S. Gets These Bases



At left, some of the 50 overage destroyers which the United States has traded to great Britain for naval and air bases in the western hemisphere are shown as they lay at the San Diego navy base. Most of the World war craft were decommissioned during the 20's but recently have been recommissioned and put into serviceable condition. Now they will go to Britain

Spreading in a 5,000-mile arc from Newfoundland to the northern coast of South America, naval and air bases will be established by the United States in the British possessions shown in the map at right. Under the agreement reached by the two nations, Great Britain has granted the U. S 99-year leases for bases in Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamica, Trinidad, St. Lucia, Antigua and British Guiana. The part of each possession in which a base will be established is indicated on the map.

COUNCIL PUTS ONE-MILL LEVY UP TO VOTERS

Orders Issue Certified on November Ballot in Move to Raise $57,000 Annually.

PROPOSED FOR 5 YEARS

Issue Calls for Majority of 65 Per Cent for Passage, Councilmen Told.

A one-mill operating levy, proposed to finance increased operations of five city departments will be submitted to the Mansfield electorate at the Nov. 5 election

Council unanimously approved the submission of the proposal last night at its September meeting.

The levy is proposed to be collected for five years and is estimated to raise approximately $57,000 annually from real estate assessments. It means that for every $1,000 valuation $1 will be added to the property owners' taxes.

The issue requires a 65 per cent majority vote for passage.

Funds form the proposal are expected to be used for operation of the police and fire departments, parks, airport and public recreation.

Fire and police departments repeatedly have asked for additional manpower and equipment, and the parks and airport are in need of extensive improvements to keep pace with a growing city. Funds for maintenance of supervised playgrounds have been exhausted, a levy for raising funds for their operation having been twice defeated at the polls.

Can't Assure Distribution.

Although Mayor William J. Locke and council's finance committee have suggested a tentative distribution of anticipated funds, it was pointed out last night that there was no way council could assure the distribution as promised.

Funds from the operating levy would have to go into the general fund and would be earmarked annually when the appropriation measure was drafted.

Although the present council has agreed on a tentative schedule of distribution, succeeding councils could change the amounts during the five year period.

U. S. Also Acts To Survey New Atlantic Bases

Crews At Boston Get Eight Ships In Shape For Delivery By Friday; Army-Navy Commission Heads For Bermuda To Lay Plans.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Manned by American crews the first of the 50 destroyers traded to Great Britain were en route to unnamed Canadian ports today, as the White House and navy cloaked movement of the vessels with the utmost secrecy.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The United States acted with great dispatch today to complete its historic swap of 50 overage destroyers for important defense base sites in six British possessions on this side of the Atlantic.

At Boston, American crews were at work on the first group of eight ships, getting them in shape for transfer to the royal navy at a Canadian port on Friday, or immediately thereafter.

Another flotilla of six of the 1,200-ton class destroyers was reported to have left Hampton Roads, Va., headed north for Boston.

Meanwhile, a 10-man commission of army and navy officers were already bound for Bermuda and a series of conferences with British officials there on the base site this country will acquire in the great sound of the resort islands.

The Bermuda base and another base in Newfoundland would be in addition to the six acquired in the destroyer swap. The right to bases in those two possessions was granted by the British as an outright gift, but their acquisition was naturally linked with the broader program.

The other base sites are in the Bahamas, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Antigua, Trinidad and British Guiana.

Congress reacted with both applause and dismay to the base deal but the expression disregarded party lines. Discussion quickly centered on whether the deal presaged another request

SCHOOL DOORS OPEN TO 7,000

Some Youngsters Smile, Few Grumble as Annual Trek to Classes Starts.

After a busy evening spent in polishing apples for teacher and other less serious preparations, Johnny and Mary Mansfield made their annual first day's trek to city school buildings this morning.

Throughout the city, 7,000 Mansfield youngsters ranging in ages from six to 19 were anxiously waiting for the bells that would call them to their first class. Exact enrollment figures were not available today.

School buses made their appearance this morning, jammed to the ceiling with happy, smiling youngsters—trying unsuccessfully to pretend that they weren't glad that school was beginning at last.

Along nearly every street in the city could be seen groups of children laughing and talking over summer vacations. Few serious grumbles were heard, although an occasional student felt it his duty to give vent to his sorrows.

With public schools in the city open to students for only a half-day, actual classroom activities were at a minimum today. The

PLEADS GUILTY

State Institution Clerk Draws Prison Sentence.

GALLIPOLIS —(AP)— Common Pleas Judge W. R. White accused the state welfare department of "permitting irregularities" at the Ohio hospital for epileptics as he sentenced a former institution clerk to prison.

The department, he said, failed to collect on bonds given by employes and allowed "former employes to remain living on the hospital grounds."

Byron C. Bodimer, the ex-clerk, was sentenced to one to 10 years yesterday after pleading guilty to charge of grand larceny, forgery and embezzlement of institution funds.

10 Communist Petition Signers Charge Fraud

Some Claim Circulator Told Them Petition Was For Old Age Pensions and For Naming 'New Candidate'.

Charges of misrepresentation in the circulation of Communist petitions in Richland county came to light today when 10 of the 48 signers claimed the petitions they signed were represented as petitions to get more old age pensions, or to put Bigelow candidates on the ballot.

Within an hour after The News-Journal was on the street yesterday calls started coming in to the editorial department from persons whose names were printed in yesterday's paper as signers of the Communist petitions.

The 10 who protested admitted they signed petitions, but they said the circulators told them the petitions were for higher pensions, for the Bigelow pension plan, or to get Bigelow candidates on the ballot in November.

One man said he understood the petition was to get "higher wages and a reduction in taxes."

Most of the 10 signers said M. J. Beery, rear of 76 West Dickson, was circulating the petition they signed. Beery is president of the Richland county chapter of the Ohio Society of Old Age Pensioners, organized here in July.

The signers who protested asked that their names be removed from the petitions which will be returned to the county election board within a few days from Columbus for a re-check.

Gov. John W. Bricker, who said there was "widespread fraud" in circulating the Communist petitions, was to confer today with Secretary Neffner on the question of barring Communist party candidates from the November ballots.

Gov. Bricker said he may ask

Russia Drafts More Men For Service in Army.

MOSCOW—(INS)—Vast increases in Soviet Russia's armed forces were officially ordered today.

In a decree headed "routine draft," the government of the U. S. S. R. called up the class of 1920, men born between January 1 and August 1 of the class of 1921, and all men in the 1921 and 1922 classes who have had ten years of schooling.

Men of older classes hitherto exempt from service also were called up.

All the conscripts must report immediately for two years of training.

O. S. R. Inmates Held, 'Forget' $10,000 In Gems Left In Car

Two youthful fugitives from the Ohio State reformatory who were arrested in Cincinnati told police today they "forgot" stolen jewelry valued at $10,000 when they abandoned a wrecked automobile in Indianapolis.

Dispatches from Cincinnati said that later, police in the Indiana city reported finding the jewelry and the car there.

The fugitives, booked by Cincinnati police as Kenneth Wesly, 18, and Ervin Breaker, 19, were reported to have escaped from the reformatory on Aug. 2.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said, however, that he had no record of the Wesly youth.

The pair was taken into custody following the apprehension of the 18-year-old bride of an Ohio penitentiary prisoner, Mrs. Norma Humphries, and two teen-age youths, Charles Allen, 18, and Wilburn Marcum, 17. Allen, the dispatches said, fled from the Boy's Industrial school at Lancaster on Aug. 22.

Cincinnati police said the four youths admitted five auto thefts and numerous burglaries, Breaker, they said, told them he had "dated" Mrs. Humphries before he was sent to the reformatory and since her husband was imprisoned. She was detained for investigation.

Reformatory records show that Breaker fled from the farm on Aug. 2 with Eugene Finney, who was later picked up by Columbus authorities and returned here.

Breaker, committed from Hamilton county, was serving a one to 20-year term for auto theft.

PUT PARKING BAN ON SIX STREETS

Councilmen Pass Legislation to Reduce Hazards: Widen Streets Around Park.

Acting to reduce accident hazards on Mansfield throughfares and to expedite movement of traffic, city council today had ordered a parking ban on sections of six streets.

The ordinance, passed as an emergency, was sponsored by Arthur L. Croak, chairman of council's traffic committee, who has been studying a recent survey turned over to council by a citizens committee on traffic.

Croak said last night that the legislation was "just a starter" and that other revisions in the city's traffic code would probably be presented in the near future.

The new law prohibits parking at any time on the odd-numbered side of the six streets.

The ban includes Lexington avenue from South Main street to the city limits, South Mulberry street from West First street to Arch street, Flint street from South Main to South Adams street, Hedges street from Park avenue east to East First street, East First street from Hedges to South

RAIDS: Nazis Send 2 Waves Of Bombers Over London Area

BULLETIN

AT A SOUTHEAST COAST PORT, ENGLAND—(INS)—Five German war planes were shot down in a fierce battle over this town late this afternoon.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Screaming air raid sirens in the London area this afternoon sent the populace to defense shelters for the second time today after a large wave of German planes had been turned away over the southeast coast in an earlier alarm.

Two of the raiders were brought down in the first wave, in a furious battle fought in the haze of a three-mile altitude.

Forty bombers and their escort of fighters were beaten back in this first attack, which set off a morning warning of 29 minutes in London while the battle was fought.

The raiders tried to enter the Thames estuary, but were forced to turn by shell bursts and buzzing little British fighters.

One of the German fighters was sent fluttering from the sky, and the pilot who bailed out was taken prisoner.

The formation then scattered and fled toward the French coast, with British chasers continuing the pursuit.

The air ministry said this and

SHAKE-UP: Carol's Cabinet Falls, New Premier Called

(By Associated Press)

BUCHAREST—The Rumanian cabinet, headed by the strongly pro-Nazi Ion Gigurtu, fell today as King Carol sought to save his nation from anarchy and the possible loss of more territory to his neighbors.

Gigurtu, in office since June 1, was replaced as premier by General Ion Antonescu, who was expected to pick a military cabinet. Gigurtu resigned within a few hours after the government, with King Carol's own safety menaced by an alleged Iron Guard plot to place Crown Prince Mihai on the throne, began rounding up Iron Guardists.

In Bucharest and Constanta, where demonstrators last night made attempts to seize power, the situation, according to a government spokesman, was "under control."

However, at Brasov, heavily armed Iron Guardists who captured the telephone offices were still in possession of the switchboards.

Residents of the capital were awakened today by explosions on the outskirts Unconfirmed reports spread that an attempt had been

Sues Lodge For $950 In Alleged Losses On 'Slots'

A suit to recover $950 he allegedly lost in slot machines in the Mansfield Moose lodge clubrooms, was filed in common pleas court today by Donald D. Renner, 14 Hedges street.

Renner, a former member of the lodge, brought the action against the Loyal Order of Moose and Earl McFarland, Joseph Heilman, David Johns, Ira Ohler, James Anderson, and Louis Zellers as officers of the lodge.

He contends in his petition that he lost $950 in gambling devices, commonly known as slot machines in the lodge clubrooms from March 9, 1940, to the present time."

The petition was brief, merely stating that Renner lost the money and seeks to recover it. The action was filed by Atty. Joseph A. Bayer.

Renner, a railroad employe, was recently suspended as a member of the lodge, representatives of the organization said.

Psychology Of Appetite Important

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

I do sometimes wish that some pediatricians could read about 1,000 typical letters I receive on problems mothers face to get their babies to eat. Then more of these pediatricians would become interested in the psychology of appetite and would realize they don't do enough when they tell the mother what to feed the child and how much; that they also need to show this mother how to cultivate an appetite in the child for this food, how to lead the child to want to eat it. Then fewer doctors would give such advice as the mother in the letter below says was given her.

Forcing Food on Child.

"Dear Dr. Myers: I am at my wit's end as to what to do about getting my baby to eat. She is eleven months old. . . . The doctor told me to force her to eat. When I did she became ill; he said not to pay any attention to her sickness, just to go ahead feeding her. This morning I did just that, and when it was time for her to eat lunch she refused. She didn't become ill, but she wouldn't swallow the spinach or beets. She would push them out of her mouth just as fast as I would put them in. And she was crying and getting upset and so was I. I just had to stop feeding her because I was almost hysterical."

Although it is true that a very slight amount of resistance to a new food might be overcome by pushing a tiny bit of it into the baby's mouth, by gradual adaptation; yet if this child's resistance increases instead of diminishing this food grows more repellant and the child's resistance to all food may increase.

The trouble is the mother expects the baby to eat what she offers and all of it right away. She is told what he should have and how much. Then if the child doesn't chose to eat it she proceeds to force it into him. Moreover, her unhappy emotions increase all the while and in turn increase the child's resistance and decrease his appetite. If she is to succeed she will not bother about how much the child eats today nor about his weight now. She will think only in terms of cultivating gradually his appetite so he will be eating well and weigh enough a month or two hence.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I think Dicky and Harry were as surprised as I at my father's caustic comment upon Philip Veritzen and his proposed visit, and I wondered if their minds were as acutely speculative as mine over the reasons which were prompting the theatrical magnate to a farmhouse sojourn. But no one of us made any comment, and the next instant my father had switched the subject to something which interested me far more than anything concerning Philip Veritzen could possibly do.

I already had turned to go, trying to ease myself out of the room "with celerity and dispatch, when he put a terse question to my husband.

"How long will it be, Richard, before the barring of the windows is completed?" he asked.

"About two hours," my husband answered, ushering me out of the room as he spoke. I heard nothing more, but that was enough to steel me in a resolution I already had taken. As I hurried downstairs again, I charged myself with the task of seeking Dicky out as soon as he was free of his task, and seeing to it that he granted Edith Fairfax's request to talk to him.

And then, as suddenly as if some evil spirit within me had leaped to throttle any generous impulse, I found myself murmuring tensely, "No! No! No!"

The next instant I looked around, panic-stricken that some one might have overhead my melodramatic plaint. But long and rigid training have schooled me to almost inaudible speech when uttering anything which other people ought not to hear, and I concluded that no one could have heard me,—even if there had been any one to hear. But the corridor was deserted, and with a feeling of vacancy between my throat and my diaphragm, I walked to the hall window recess looking out upon the garden, and sank down in it, knowing that I must pull myself together before I saw any other human being.

It was not jealousy of the grief-shadowed and pain - wracked wraith which now answered to the name of Edith Fairfax that was swaying me. I acquitted myself of that meanness, even as I acknowledged that poignant memories of a time when I was jealous of the girl who had tried so hard to win Dicky's love from me, were partly responsible for the queer feeling of utter disgust with life, and of the futility of going on with it that was sweeping over me.

But not wholly! I probed relentlessly through the layers of camouflage which covered my secret thoughts, and away down at the bottom of my heart found the secret thing like a coiled serpent which was constricting every generous impulse.

It was the thought of "Babs."

An irrepressible little shudder went over me as that name rose almost to my lips, although not for the world would I have given it utterance.

Never had I set eyes on the girl whose name had been so inextricably entwined in the horrible mesh of gangster-instigated blackmail and murder which had so nearly cost Dicky his life. But I had seen her sister, the hard-faced, raucous-voiced woman, who temporarily had taken Edith Fairfax's place on the art magazine which Dicky and Edith owned in a partnership that Dicky had threatened to sever more than once. And from Dicky's own lips I had heard that "Babs," young, attractive, and in my husband's perennial naive judgment — innocent and ingenuous, was the weapon upon which the gangsters had counted in their blackmail plot, counted so surely but they were astonished and enraged when Dicky had refused to deliver my father into their hands as their price for their silence to me.

Dicky had tried manfully to tell me the whole sordid story after my father's organization had rescued him from the gangsters and captured his pseudo office manager and her gangster associates. But in a romantic burst of generosity I had refused to listen to him. Had I been right in making that gesture? I now wondered miserably.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

By BRADBURY FOOTE
MGM Screen Writer.

(An Open Letter to Vacationing Robbin Coons)

HOLLYWOOD—Did you ever feel that you ought to own a racehorse? Neither did I—until two weeks ago. And I'm all right again now. But there were a few days when I was convinced that possession of a blooded steed was more important than writing a hit picture.

You see, every summer we have as house guests a couple of adagio boys—two kids who spend about nine months of the year tossing some misguided girl around the theaters and night clubs. Last year they popped in on us while the races were on at Hollywood Park, and in showing them the town we naturally took them to the track. They were thrilled, although they knew less about horses than I did, if possible. They wagered, however, and won.

It was amusing to watch them pick horses. Once they wanted to try a long shot. The 'tote' board showed half a dozen, ranging from 20 to 1 to 99 to 1, but they couldn't make up their minds. I suggested a plug named "Rail Fence." They looked the animal up in the bundle of newspapers they carried. But they decided against him. His notices were too poor. They settled for a 30 to 1 shot and won.

This year they showed up again during the Hollywood Park meeting. But this time they were different fellows. They sat around our living room of an evening, studying the Racing Form and discoursing largely on blood lines, blinkers, fetlocks and a multitude of things that sounded darned impressive. They displayed no interest in my beautiful new billiard table or my wife's roses, and they totally ignored our Siamese cat. Even our Eastern lilac bush failed to impress them. But Kayak II, Challedon, Eight-Thirty and War Admiral made them fairly vibrate.

My wife knows a lot about cows, having been raised on a farm, but all she can do with a horse is ride it. I can't even do that, having wasted my life in show business. All I know about horses I learned years ago when I played the hind legs of a comedy horse.

What I needed, the family said, was a horse. Horses were the measure of importance in the motion picture industry—the better the horse the greater the importance. Names were cited. What better way of achieving fame?

I was impressed. I was discussing contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer at the time, and was wide open for some good publicity. I weakened.

The kids went into a frenzy of elation. They bought stop-watches and got up at 3 a. m. to go out to the track. I had to lecture them severely to keep them from taking advantage of an unfortunate David Harum who owned an enormous feed bill and was about to commit suicide. Next morning we went out to see a horse workout. I felt like a fool. A discouraged looking animal lounged past us, the kids snapped their stop-watches and shouted, "There he goes!" I don't know where he went. We waited around until breakfast time, but the horse didn't show up. Maybe someone bought him on the backstretch.

Then the unexpected happened. The studio came through with the contract and I didn't have to buy a horse. The kids were pretty bitter about it, but I salved their feelings by paying their railroad fare back to New York.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"During my summer vacation, I met a splendid young man whom my family disapproves of, because he's not just like us. I'll admit he's something of a diamond in the rough, but weren't all diamonds in the rough before they were polished?

"The family say he isn't a diamond at all, but a very rough rhinestone. C. is assertive and a bit of an egoist, but he's much more clever than the members of his own family, his associates. So naturally his opinions are strong, and he doesn't hesitate to express them.

"They also quarrel with the way he eats, and they snub him because he isn't one of those hat-in-hand young men. I know he does some things differently from us but why can't he be taught? Another thing, the family doesn't like his job. They say if he couldn't get a better job at 32, he's not likely to get one at 42.

"But I'm in love, Miss Fairfax; I'm 20 and feel I'm old enough to know my own mind. As you're always preaching the doctrine of not marrying anyone unless you're in love with him or her, I hope you'll put up a good argument for me, as my family reads your column. JANET."

I'll admit, my dear Janet, that I always stand by that fundamental of married life: Don't marry anyone unless you're so much in love that you can't live without him or her. That's the first requisite. There are other things pretty nearly as necessary in the recipe for happy marriage, as love—or thinking you're in love.

Because, my dear, at 20 there are a great many things, such as fascination, sentiment, just plain lonesomeness, and the desire to have a home of one's own, not to mention high-powered emotionalism, which masquerade under the name of love. And these counterfeits wear thin in time, like the gilt plating on cheap rings.

Romance is a pretty rickety foundation on which to build a home that will endure. And to avoid the risks in "how to be happy though married" it's safer to marry someone who has the same sort of background as yourself.

Life is made up of so many little things, and, unfortunately, it's these little things that get on one's nerves day after day. They're like the constant dripping of water, which in time wears away the rock.

There are exceptions, of course, and I've known many women who have married these diamonds in the rough and have succeeded in polishing them into social Kohinoors. But that's because the rough diamonds wanted to be polished and let themselves be instructed willingly in certain processes to achieve their own ends.

They had gumption enough to know that they couldn't get ahead if they were regarded as boors, and patiently accepted their lessons on how to eat properly, when to take off their hats, get out of chairs, and through considerable reading of newspapers, magazines and books, know how to hold their own when they talk.

But a good many of these diamonds in the rough think they know it all, and that their way is the best way, and 'way down deep they realize if their way is open to criticism, they prefer to brazen it out, which is, of course, their open confession of having an inferiority complex.

You're only 20, your rough diamond is 32. See how he reacts to a little pre-nuptial polishing up. If he gets angry at a few tactful suggestions, watch your step. You haven't told me what your rough diamond's job is. But there is something in what your family tells you, that a man who is without ambition at 32 is more than likely to be contented with a place in which he is dropped at 42. Again, watch your step.

Icebergs have been sighted so huge their surface has been estimated at 1,000 square miles.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOWING TWO SUITS

There are times when you can show two suits with a single call. A double after the opponents have shown two suits must obviously tell your partner you are prepared for a takeout by him in either of the two unbid ones. There are many situations in which this is more desirable than bidding one of your own suits, as it practically tells the whole story all at once. Your partner then can be ready to act even if the next opponent jump in an effort to shut him out.

	♠ 9 ♥ A K 9 8 7 2 ♦ A Q J ♣ Q 6 3
♠ A K 7 5 ♥ 5 ♦ 7 2 ♣ A J 10 5 4 2	W. N. E. S.	♠ Q J 8 3 2 ♥ 10 6 4 ♦ 9 5 3 ♣ K 8
	♠ 10 6 4 ♥ Q J 3 ♦ K 10 8 6 4 ♣ 9 7

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♦	3 ♣
4 ♥

That was the bidding at one table, in a duplicate. At another it was:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♦	Dbl
4 ♥	4 ♠

In the first case, East could not be at all sure that his partner held anything particular in spades, or that his hand was very strong. In the second case, West told the wide world that he held a strong hand, including enough fit for a four-card suit in either of the black suits, since the enemy had bid the two red ones.

Game can be made by either side on this deal. North and South will lose only one trick in spades and two in clubs, when playing for 4-Hearts. East and West will lose only one trick in hearts and two in diamonds when playing for 4-Spades. In such a situation, the hand really should be played at a sacrifice, which gets beaten. If North and South could have been sure their opponents would make game, their bid over 4-Spades would have been 5-Hearts, beaten one trick, but they had no sure way of knowing it. In fact, both partners studied a bit before deciding not to double the 4-Spades.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ A K J 10 6 ♥ A J 8 7 ♦ A 7 ♣ 4 3
♠ 8 4 ♥ K 10 6 5 4 ♦ 5 3 ♣ A J 9 6	W. N. E. S.	♠ Q 7 5 ♥ Q 3 2 ♦ 10 9 6 ♣ Q 7 2
	♠ 9 3 2 ♥ 9 ♦ K Q J 8 2 ♣ K 10 8 5

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

Why should correct bidding here put North and South into 4-Spades and not 3-No Trumps?

BRIEFS

Thirty-two students of the new vocational agriculture department made a trip to the Ohio State fair last week as guests of Earl Blayney, their instructor, and Ralph Ryerson, another member of the high school faculty. During the day, the boys visited many interesting exhibits including livestock, junior fair, farm machinery, conservation and horticultural exhibits. Sixty-three students of the vocational agriculture department of the Hayesville school also made the trip on Friday as guests of Mr. Blayney.

Large crowds attended the Perrysville homecoming, which was held Wednesday through Saturday of last week.

Mrs. Mary Applegate is visiting friends at Cloverdale, Mich.

Miss Roseanne Flickinger of Cuyahoga Falls, returned home Sunday, after a week's visit with her cousin, Miss Rose Covert.

Bill Stout of Valley City spent several days last week with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McClure and family.

Miss Helen Stanley of Cleveland spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stanley.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, September 5.

WHILE things may be expected to hold their own on this day, judging by certain rather negative or adverse configurations, it will take some sagacity, discretion and good judgment. The especial menace seems to arise from some rather drastic action coming from a group source. This sinister force may operate with cunning, in deep-laid and obscure plots or schemes. It is possible that in a difficult and baffling situation the proverbial "woman's intuition" may be found illuminating, as an elder might assist.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a fairly successful and progressive year by the exercise of steadiness, application, sound acumen and good judgment, especially in difficult and threatening predicaments possibly traceable to deep-laid and sinister plots of certain combinations or group interests. Beware "rackets" and shun drastic measures for tact and finesse, compromise should wise counsel recommend.

A child born on this day may be moderately equipped for coping with negative conditions arising in its life, being tactful, courteous, steady, thoughtful and having keen insight.

CHAPTER IX

"You're welcome, most ingenious young man."

"You're not angry?"

"No, not angry. . . ." But wondering how it would be if she were to find herself alone with Alan five years after a violent end to their love affair. Would the evening never end? Persistent little hammers knocked against her brain. She felt disheveled, her thoughts strewn, thoughts that had been so orderly a few days ago.

Norman said, "Bribing an orchestra always give me a sense of power."

So it had been the desire for a sense of power rather than the desire to dance with her that he had the music prolonged. She felt relieved, wondering why, but ceasing to wonder about anything except Edwina and Alan as Norman followed her in the direction of the veranda. For the first time since she had known Alan she feared for what he might do. She felt a strange, inexplicable sympathy for the girl who had loved him as much perhaps as she loved him now. . .

Alan and Edwina had come in and Edwina, animated again, was chatting with Mrs. Webster who was obviously very flattered. Alan stood apart with Tommy Webster, pretending to listen to him, but when Carol and Norman joined the group, Alan moved to Carol's side as if her closeness was refuge.

Edwina's glance took in all of them. A defiant impulse caused her to say, "I'm giving a party next Saturday. I'd like you to come. . . ."

Little Mrs. Webster fluttered but her husband wagged his head mournfully. They would be gone a week hence.

Carol said uneasily, "Thank you."

Alan's voice was low. "Thank you. I don't know. I may be out of town."

"That's too bad," Edwina said. She moved toward Norman and locked her arm through his. "Well, awfully nice to know all of you. Like to see you again, Alan. I promised to see the Smiths before they leave. . . ."

* * *

Alan looked tired from the strain, Carol thought, and the persistent little hammers had increased their knocking against her brain. But the Websters wanted to dance again and went gaily inside.

"I'd like to leave, Carol. . . ."

"And I've a beastly headache." What had they said to each other? Had they quarreled or had they been icily polite? Wouldn't he tell her? "Perhaps they'll agree to go after this dance."

"I hope so."

They had come in the Webster's sedan, and riding back to town Mrs. Webster kept her head turned to the rear seat, saying once, "Isn't Edwina Burke nice? I'd no idea she was a friendly, nice sort of person." Carol knew that she would not have a moment alone with Alan and because he seemed so stiff and remote sitting beside her, she slipped her cool hand into his.

He went as far as the front porch with her, kissed her briefly and warmly, held her close an instant and said, "I'm sorry about tonight. . . ."

"It wasn't bad for me but it was bad for you. I'm sorry for your sake darling."

"You understand. You always understand."

"I love you. That's why I understand."

On the porch she stood and watched him, a strong-made, broad-shouldered, fair young man, walk down the path. Mrs. Webster's small white hand fluttered briefly in farewell as the car drove off. Poor Alan, so obsessed. . . . She shivered, not from cold but from tight nerves and from a despicable fear she could not quite explain, a fear that caused a sudden rush of tears to sting her eyes. She thought: I'm going to marry a man who is dominated by hate and who changes into some one I don't know and can't reach when he thinks of his hate. . . .

Then the dark house received her.

Rather suddenly it was summer, with one bright warm day dissolving pleasantly and uneventfully into the next. The water-filled old quarry became an almost daily meeting place; the mossy knolls beside it were dotted with slim brown bodies. And on the high-school tennis courts a short distance from her home Carol played tennis almost daily with friends and new acquaintances made on the courts. Deliberately her days were filled with physical activity; her nights were devoted to her father and Alan. Seeds of doubt and unhappiness, she had told herself lately, had been driven from her.

Edwina's party had come and gone, an unmentionable thing between Alan and her. Yet on the night of the party when she and Alan had gone to a movie with Ellen Thomas and Ted Barlow she had closed her eyes to the picture and visualized Edwina's house ablaze with light and color, and Edwina herself, always a flame, and Norman. To no one and she voiced regret that she, loving beauty and color and music, could not go. Of late, too, her friends had summoned the courage to say, "Don't you hate the idea of Edwina Burke's being back, Carol?" and she hoped she had silenced them by replying, "No. Why should I? Alan and I met her at the club. I like her. . . ."

In Alan's attitude she sensed a purposeful attentiveness, a renewed ardor and an added sweetness. More frequently his voice come over the telephone to her and more frequently in the daytime hours he left his office to swim or play tennis with her. No longer remote, but transparent and close again, their laughter returning, their voices eager with plans for a wedding in November. Yet she knew, as she tried to hug her happiness to her, that the sight of Edwina, however distant, or even the mention of her name, would alienate them again.

She was a nurse on duty the morning she opened the door that separated the waiting room from her father's office and saw Norman. Obviously he had been playing in the sun, too, for his face was burned to a deep brown. The next time she saw Edwina Burke, she thought, she would doubtless see the olive-tinted face as deeply tanned as his. She said merely, "Good morning," and followed the next patient, a neurotic middle-aged woman, into her father's office. It was at least an hour later before she came to Norman, the last patient, and knew instantly, when she saw his hand wrapped in a handkerchief, that he had been hurt.

Dr. Tallant arose from behind his desk and she saw recognition light his mild blue eyes when she introduced the two men.

"I took a spill playing tennis this morning," Norman said.

"Let's have a look at it." A few moments later he said, "did you drive in with your left hand? You didn't use your right." And when Norman nodded, his mouth twisted with pain, Dr. Tallant said, "It isn't serious but these things hurt a good bit at first, Carol, I suggest that you change and drive this young man home. I won't be even indirectly responsible for an accident."

Not turning his head, Norman said," Benson wil be there when we get there, Carol. He'll drive you back."

She wondered if her father smiled because of Norman's casual and familiar use of her name.

She was wearing a printed cotton frock and a blue turban when she slid into the driver's seat of the black coupe.

"Does your wrist hurt?"

"Not much. Carol, would you mind very much, I wonder, turning this way for a second?"

"While I'm driving your elegant car? No." The disguised laughter she had felt in his voice curved her mouth. "Haven't you been in enough accidents since you've been here? How did you make out with Edwina's accident?"

"Nothing happened. It seems she's very good at having things fixed up—her way. Influence, I think you call it. Pull a few strings and all is quiet."

Keeping her eyes ahead, she asked, "Why did you want me to look at you?"

"Never mind. You've spoiled it anyway. I can look at your profile. Your nose has been peeling from sunburn, hasn't it? Mine, too. The good old summertime. I've been writing such glowing accounts of your delightful countryside that I'm expecting half of New York to descend on me any time."

"Then you like it here."

There was reproach in his voice. "You have a short memory. I told you that one could live and breathe and feel and think here. By the way, thanks to your father, you're having luncheon with me. If you don't, your father will lose a patient who has a positive talent for getting himself banged up."

"I'd like to, Norman, but I have a tennis engagement."

"I had one this morning early, and look at me. You're staying. It's settled. Benson will rattle a few pots and pans and turn out the most delicious luncheon you've ever eaten. Besides, I'm a lonely man."

"Anything but lonely." And she turned her head and smiled at him, thinking how childish it would be of her to feel flattered by his veiled compliments and his insistence upon being with her. She wanted to ask, "Why, Norman, with all the girls in Newton and New York and Long Island, do you single out one who is going to marry somebody else? Why not Edwina when you make such a striking couple, when you must have so much in common to talk and laugh about? She said instead, "Tell me about Edwina Burke's party."

He was surprisingly serious. "She has a talent for giving parties, a lavish talent. Mobs of people, gallons of drink, tons to eat and good music. Everybody had a swell time. And Edwina . . ." His voice trailed off but he picked it up again. "Gracious hostess, a gracious girl. I've never fought over any girl but I'd fight if any one ever spoke against her within my hearing. She inspires loyalty."

He loved Edwina, she thought, though as yet he would not admit it even to himself. In Norman, Edwina inspired loyalty, in Alan she engendered hate . . . And she, Carol, believed in both Norman, a new friend, and in Alan, whom she loved. The enigma of Edwina Burke, whom you either loved or hated, tied your brain in knots.

Her eyes met Norman's as she turned her head and she found in his not the mocking laughter she expected but the earnestness that always surprised her and now, something new, an insight into her as if he had read her thoughts.

Her heart jerked. She said quietly, "You'll have to tell me where your house is."

It was a low rambling stone house that nestled between two hills. Carol went no further than the cool shady veranda furnished with comfortable wicker pieces and a low table on which perched a portable typewriter amid some papers, and an assortment of pipes and ash trays. Benson, a small man in a white coat, smiled at her his face breaking into fine, merry wrinkles, when he brought out cold, tall mint drinks and then arranged a card table for luncheon.

Norman, relaxed in a comfortable chair, was amusing and impersonal, his eyes narrowing as he glanced over the picturesque countryside. To Carol his presence gave the effect of well being and stimulation. She noticed his hands, finely made and strong, since as a student nurse hands had always interested her as an index to character and she had thought often that she could never marry a man until she longed for his touch. Marry . . . She would marry Alan and in some distant place Norman would marry. The paths of their lives would run parallel but they would never cross again.

"If your thoughts are worth more than a penny," he said.

"I was looking ahead for both of us."

"That's bad. The things, good or bad, you are certain will happen probably won't. You never clear all the obstacles, you know."

"I haven't any obstacles." But she was whistling in the dark . . .

"That's what you think." He smiled and said with feeling, "I'm an obstacle, Carol."

* * *

He was joking of course. She gave him a swift, rather nervous smile as she got up and walked to the end of the veranda, seeing a small fat little bird enjoying his bath in the rear garden. Norman followed . . . and she felt his hand on her shoulder and the electric nearness of him.

SETS UP FUNDS FOR TWO JOBS

Council OK's Hiring of Sewer Inspector, More House Number Corrections.

Council last night set up funds for completing two jobs—house number corrections and elimination of roof drains from the sanitary sewer system.

An appropriation of $650 was authorized for hiring an inspector to supervise the removal of illegal connections to the sanitary sewers, and $100 was appropriated to complete the house numbering project.

The inspector's position was created for a period of four months. The salary was set at $125, the balance of the funds to be used for administration.

Mayor William J. Locke told council he intended to put a man on the job in order to see what could be done about enforcing a city ordinance which prohibits connection of roof drains to the sewers.

A survey was recently completed by WPA, showing that there are more than 4,000 illegal connections in the city, the result of which, officials contend, causes the sanitary sewers to overflow during heavy rains and back up in basements.

City Engineer W. C. Statler requested the $100 appropriation for hiring assistants to post some 400 house numbers which have not yet been corrected, the numbers to be put up by the city and charged to the property owner on his tax duplicate.

Still Holding Second Girl and Boy, Demand Car and Clear Road for Their Release.

BULLETIN

COLUMBIA, La.—(INS)—In a mad dash for freedom, two of five escaped Arkansas desperadoes emerged from the woods north of Columbia today, commandeered an automobile, kidnapped the driver and sped off in the direction of Monroe, authorities reported.

COLUMBIA, La.—(AP)—Five Arkansas convicts, desperately dodging a thousand possemen, early today released one of two high school girls they had seized as shields in a reckless bid for freedom.

The girl, not immediately identified, told officers the convicts sent her out of the swamp where they are hiding to "make a deal" for the lives of another high school girl and a boy still held by the fugitives.

The convicts demanded a car and a clear road as their price for the release of the two youngsters. About the same time the girl appeared, three shots were heard from the area in which armed trusties from the Arkansas prison are searching for the escapes.

They are part of the 36 felons who killed a guard, wounded another and fled from the Arkansas penal farm near Pine Bluff on Labor day and spread out fanwise to attempt escape.

Since then, a posseman and convict were killed here and 10 convicts were recaptured in different sections of Arkansas.

This was the third day the high school students have been prisoners of the desperadoes in a mad game of hide-and-seek with possemen afraid to fire because of the youngsters.

The convicts shot and killed Frank Gartman, a posseman, early yesterday, and fled with their hostages into a dense swamp.

Possemen, aided by 100 state policemen sent by Governor Sam Jones, cornered the ringleader of the break, Frank Conley, 34, on the Ouachita river levee yesterday and shredded his body with bullets. Conley died only 50 yards from where Gartman was killed.

The youthful hostages are Gladys Diamond, 15, Voncelie Williams, 16, and Jerry Harrigill, 17, all of Rayville. They were kidnaped and their automobile commandeered when they stopped Monday near Rayville to offer aid to the convicts, whose stolen car had been damaged in an accident.

Two more convicts were recaptured last night. Drig Harvey, 29, who had been in one gun fight near Garland, Ark., since his escape was found sleeping in the woods near Texarkana, Ark-Tex. Kenneth Shipley, 16, was taken in custody near Linwood, Ark.

Gangster Freed From Alcatraz After 18 Years

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—James (Dutch) Colson lost himself in the obscurity of the big city today, free at last from Alcatraz island prison.

Colson, one of the daring Charles Schultz gang that stole $1,000,000 in a Toledo mail robbery in 1821, left the forbidding rock last night a free man, the fourth ever to come away on habeas corpus proceedings.

For 18 years he had been in federal prisons, first at Atlanta then Alcatraz. Tall, gaunt and sallow, he looked 20 years older than his 53 years.

He was sentenced to 55 years for various counts of robbery and holdup, but he pleaded all offenses were contained in one—the mail robbery—and Federal Judge Martin I. Walsh agreed with him.

Having served 18 years of one 25-year sentence, time off for good behaviour brought him freedom. The government didn't contest the ruling.

Sets Up $28,000 Fund for Water Extension

Frank Hughes, South Mulberry street, thinks a fellow can do as well sight-seeing in Washington by himself as on a conducted tour. In the capital with Mrs. Hughes and their son, they were in the capitol building just wandering around when, by a stroke of good luck a porter permitted them into the president's office in that building and let them sit in the chair at his desk. The office is one the president uses when he goes to the capitol building to address congress. Hughes says "it was the thrill of a life time."

Richland county farmers should be glad now that the summer was a dry one here, County Agent George B. Ganyard commented today after returning from a vacation trip through Michigan. There was too much rain most of the summer in Michigan and most of the oats is still in the shock where it appears to have been badly damaged, the county agent said. Other crops and harvest activities were hard hit too by excessive rain.

The nationally known magazine which recently ran a department called "Animal Sports" and described a penguin bathing party and a midnight rabbit dance can add another event to its list. And it can eliminate the element of secrecy. Reporters had to sneak up on the penguins and the rabbits but last night while pedestrians tramped busily along West Fourth street two large grey rats romped in and out of a row of basement windows along the street level chasing each other in the gayest of sport. Pedestrians appeared to notice the rodents even less than the animals noticed passers-by.

EPIDEMIC WANES

Whooping Cough Declines and Disease List Down.

Declaring that a mild epidemic of whooping cough which swept Mansfield for two months was on the wane, Dr. W. L. Merz, assistant health commissioner told the board of health last night that a 30 per cent decrease in communicable disease was noted in August.

Dr. Merz told board members that a total of 87 cases of contagious diseases were reported to the health department last month as against 114 in July.

He said that whooping cough which had been on a rampage throughout the county accounted for only 55 of the cases last month as compared to 89 reported the month previous.

There was also 15 cases of venereal disease reported; 11 cases of scarlet fever, and one each of malaria, mumps, pneumonia, and infantile paralysis.

TRUSTIES FLEE

Escape From London Prison Farm During Night.

LONDON—(AP)—Two trusties, one scheduled to be freed on parole March 1, escaped from a London prison farm dairy barn detail during the night, institution officials announced today.

Earl Hemminger, 34, Jefferson county, fled with William Mitchell, 35, Hamilton county. Hemminger had been granted a parole. He was sentenced in October, 1933, to serve a term for robbery and Mitchell was convicted in 1938 of auto theft.

MANSFIELD'S WILLKIE CLUB ORGANIZES, PICKS OFFICERS

Berlyn McCready, Mansfield insurance representative, last night was elected president of the Richland County Willkie-Bricker-Burton club at an organization meeting at Republican headquarters.

Mrs. M. Pearl Bissman, Mansfield, was chosen vice president, and Melvin Yoha, Butler township, was elected secretary.

The club selected Tuesday night as its permanent meeting date. It is expected, however, that rallies will be held on other nights during the campaign if speakers are not available for the Tuesday meetings.

Approximately 175 members of the new club attended last night's sesion. Republican candidates for county offices were introduced by Atty. John Catlett, temporary chairman and a candidate for state representative.

Introduced to the group were Theodore Lutz, candidate for prosecuting attorney; Harry Orewiler and C. L. Shoup, candidates for county commissioner; James Brownscombe, for clerk of courts; L. L. Kochenderfer, for county recorder; Ralph Schad, jr., for sheriff, and Ralph Hughes, for county treasurer.

The club voted to appoint a man and woman campaign worker in each of the 92 precincts in the county to stimulate registration and visit voters in behalf of the Republican candidates.

C. R. BEECH DIES

Brief Illness Fatal; Funeral To Be Held Friday.

Chester R. Beech, 28, died Tuesday evening at General hospital following a brief illness. A member of St. Paul's Lutheran church, he had spent his entire life in Mansfield attending the public schools and graduating from Mansfield high school.

He made his home at 318 High street with his mother who survives along with one sister, Mrs. Jacob Schmidt, also of Mansfield. He had been employed at the Garn auto repair shop.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where funeral services will be held Friday at 3 p. m., Rev. H. L. Gilbert officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

COUNCIL PASSES BILL TO SET UP REQUIRED FUNDS

Program Calls for WPA Aid In Extending Lines Into Mercantile District.

Approval of a $28,000 appropriation by city council last night paved the way for the construction of a $75,000 WPA water line program.

The project, now before WPA officials in Columbus for approval, calls for the extension of a high capacity line constructed on Cook road and Lexington avenue into the mercantile district.

Scheduled to get under way this winter it will be the largest single improvement to be made in the water distribution system since the Lexington-Cook road water main and Woodland elevated tower were built at a cost of $64,000 two years ago.

The 16-inch main was extended on Lexington avenue only to Blanche street at that time because of limited funds. The proposed project calls for construction of the line on Mendota street, South Mulberry street, Glessner avenue to Crouse street, to Weldon avenue to East Fourth street where it will connect to the new main put down on Bowman street several weeks ago.

The project is part of the recommended extensions planned by George B. Gascoyine, Cleveland engineer, and is approved by the state department of health and the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

City Engineer W. C Statler said the job schedules have not yet been prepared for the project but that it is expected that the work will provide more than 100 WPA workers with employment for a period of at least three months.

The appropriation, C. N. Shultz, chairman of council's water committee said, will cover the city's share of the cost for materials, the government supplying the balance for labor expense.

DIES AT AGE 50

Raymond F. Sutton Formerly Worked at Tire Plant.

Raymond F. Sutton, 50, R. D. 4, Mansfield, died early this morning at General hospital, following a brief illness.

Born in Fredericktown, Feb. 6, 1890, he came to Mansfield 10 years ago and worked as a machinist at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company until the time of his illness.

A member of the Sons and Daughters of Herman, he is survived by his wife, Gladys; four daughters, June of Miami, Fla., Virginia, Pauline, and Jeanette, at home; one son, Robert, at home; three brothers, Clell and John, both of Newark, and Jay of Roanoke, Va.; two sisters, Mrs. R. E. McCann, Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Thomas Helphrey, Columbus.

Friends may call at the Geiger funeral home. Arrangements for funeral services were not complete today.

DENTAL CLINIC RESUMES WORK

Board Members Entertained At Home Tuesday.

Activities of the Mansfield Dental clinic were resumed yesterday when Mrs. Ward Ingraham, entertained members of the board at her home on West Third street. Following the resignation of Mrs. Robert Evans, vice president, Mrs. Warren Fort was elected to the office, and Mrs. Robert Black succeeded her as secretary-treasurer.

It was decided that the organization would continue its activities on the present budget which was set up last year. The first general meeting for representatives of all participating clubs will be held Sept. 9 at the Chamber of Commerce club rooms at 7:30 p. m.

Take all the vogues launched on a feminine world by Paris and Fifth avenue. Add them together, then compare the total with the impressive number of fads that have had their inception in Hollywood, land of the free and home of the rave. You'll find that Hollywood emerges the winner by a margin wider than that between the respective waistlines of Slim Summerville and Charles Laughton.

Greta Garbo introduced the shoulder-length bob to a nation of nymphs addicted to windblown coiffures and shingles; now it takes in antiquarian in her late 20's to recall 'way back when shingles were a style, not an affliction.

Even ladies whose lips were naturally full coated them with powder and camouflaged cupids bows until Joan Crawford created the voluptuous Heavy-heavy-hangs-over-thy-chin-lip line. Today, glamor girls with natural cupids bows hang their heads in shame and disguise their miniature mouths under lavishly exaggerated smears of lipstick. Merlene Dietrich and Katharine Hepburn taught debs and stenos alike to relax in their slacks.

Clark Gable popularized the turtle-neck sweater, Hedy LaMarr gave brunettes the courage to thumb their noses at Anita Loos, Dorothy Lamour hit the gong with her sarong, and when Vivien Leigh portrayed Scarlett O'Hara whalebone corsets played an uncomfortable, brief return engagement with the stylish set.

Darryl Zanuck, the eminent historian who has recorded celluloid documents on everything from the invention of the telephone to Diamond Jim Brady's muscle and Lillian Russell's bustle was bound, sooner or later, to get around to the picturization of the life of Brigham Young, the Mormon leader who was a proponent of multiple marriage. While this column is optimistic enough to feel that the film will be accepted merely as an historical review of a spectacular part of early America, and will not give Tommy Manville, John Barrymore or George Jessel any rash ideas, it would like to go on record as predicting that the picturization of "Brigham Young" will bring about (1) a new subject for comedians to gag about; (2) a revolutionary hair style—which is just about due now, anyway; (3) a definitely different trend in Fall fashions.

Brigham Young had twenty-seven wives and an equal number of mothers-in-law. Any day now you can expect Milton Berle to answer a heckler by shouting: "Go ahead, bud—heckle me all you like — Brigham Young had twenty-seven mothers-in-law, and he lived to be 76!"

* * *

During Leap Year, Mormon gentlemen attracted larger crowds than Bank Night, so of course the cinematic story of Brigham Young wil give Leap Year gagsters a new lease on life. During the reign of Brigham Young, Artemus Ward, the great humorist, visited Utah and was proposed to by 17 young Mormon widows. He rejected the overwhelming offer. The widows wrung their hands and sobbed: "Oh, cruel man—this is too much—too much!" He wrung his hands and explained that that was what he thought, and why he had declined.

Any broadcast now, you may expect to hear Bob Hope quip: "Leap Year doesn't bother me much—but you take Brigham Young—there was a fellow who really had his hands full during Leap Year. He took the leap so many times, I understand he had a charge account at the License Bureau!

Young had 56 children, so if you're patient and can stand the suspense just a little longer, you'll be rewarded by hearing someone like Joe E. Lewis say: "Father's day was a great day for Brigham Young—I'll bet he received greetings from every state in the Union."

Young tried his hand at designing and attempted to make all Mormon women wear modest bonnets and tailor-made capes. Although their fashions were puritanical, they rebelled at the idea of wearing such pathetically simple garb. But in those days Brigham didn't have the cooperation of the whacky milliners—now those same bonnets and capes are exciting the most sophisticated Manhattan belles and will play a vital part in the Fall fashion scene.

Brigham Young liked dancing, but considered the polka too daring—wonder how he'd react to the fashionable femmes who will be doing the rhumba and the conga at the Stork this fall in authentic copies of the clothes he designed to express his ideals of feminine modesty and gentleness.

As for the tonsorial department, Young sported a six-inch beard and so you may prepare to see other men-about-town besides Bill Plankinton and Orson Welles chuckling into their whiskers before long. Young disapproved of bobbed hair; beauticians are already experimenting with long-hair styles and false braids to disguise bobbed hair for the coming season.

Although Tyrone Power won't play Brigham Young in the film, he will portray the part of a Mormon leader. Good thing Tyrone doesn't think it's essential for an actor actually to live every single part he was called upon to play.

Mansfield Tygers Launch Practice Sessions

Here are some of the youngsters on hand yesterday as the Mansfield High Tyger football squad officially launched practice sessions. The initial workout was staged at Stadium field. Approximately 80 youths reported to Coach Paul Snyder at the first session. In the photo above, is Bill Doolittle, a junior, practicing his punting soon after things got under way. He is a member of the 1939 "pony" backfield and Snyder is grooming the lad to handle the kicking assignment this fall. Above, at the right, is a 1939 backfield man who Snyder is converting into a guard. Small, but fast, Kinkle's experience is expected to help in steadying the green forward wall. Bill Birmelin, a promising sophomore, is getting a few pointers from Snyder in the art of blocking. Birmelin is expected to handle a tackle berth. Joe Romano is the other gridder in the picture.

Club League Sets Opening

Keglers to Launch 1940-41 Play Sept. 9.

The opening night's schedule of the Club Bowling league for the 1940-41 season was set at a meeting of the league last night at the Meder Recreation alleys.

* * *

Twelve teams will be represented in the league this year, with one change, according to Ralph LeMunyon, secretary. The Rotary club will be represented this year, replacing the Junior Association of Commerce outfit.

* * *

The Club league will open its season at 6:30 p. m. Monday, Sept. 9. Schedule for opening night includes American Legion vs. Commercial Managers, Kiwanis club vs. Mansfield Liederkranz; Lumbermen Insurance vs. Mansfield Savings bank; Optimist club vs. Page Dairy, Richman's Clothes vs. Rotary club, and Schoolmasters vs. Tracy and Avery.

Any unaffiliated bowlers wishing to bowl in the Club league are urged by Secretary LeMunyon to be present opening night.

WELBY VAN HORN FALLS OUT OF NATIONAL MEET

NEW YORK (AP)—The national tennis championships at Forest Hills went along smoothly yesterday with one exception. Welby Van Horn fell by the wayside to end a year's roller-coaster career that has had few parallels in tennis.

A year ago in the nationals the California netter smashed through Elwood Cooke, Wayne Sabin and Jack Bromwich to win his way to the finals—and yesterday he was badly beaten by Harris Everett, a college player, in a five set second round struggle.

Braves Rally To Turn Back Fostoria In League Contest

THE Mansfield Braves came from behind last night to chalk up a 4 to 2 win over Fostoria under the floodlights.

* * *

Behind by a 2-0 count going into the seventh, the Braves pushed over three runs to take the lead and added their final marker in the next stanza.

* * *

Mansfield returns to the Fairground today to meet the Red Birds in a single contest at 8 p. m. Rex Benton is expected to handle the mound duties in the game which will start a half-hour earlier.

Bob Arnold was on the hill for the Braves last night and scattered eight hits to the Red Birds in registering his 18th triumph of the season. He fanned six and gave up a walk.

Fostoria, battling to keep out of the cellar, collected its two runs in the third, but the rest of the way couldn't do anything with Arnold's baffling slants.

* * *

Dick Morse led the Braves 11-hit attack with three singles, while Manager Dewey Stover added a double and single. Woodlen and Howard Beals secured two bingles apiece.

ST. LOUIS—(NS)—John Vernon Welch, 33, former pitcher with the Boston Red Sox, Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs, was dead today after a prolonged illness.

Hits Circuit Clout With Bases Loaded as Moose Softballers Triumph.

JOE KUNTZ is the toast of the Moose lodge softball team today.

And rightly so too, for didn't he provide the runs which proved to be the deciding markers as the Moose team defeated the Y. M. C. A. Commercial league All-Stars, 7 to 5, in the fifth and deciding game yesterday at Liberty park to annex the series.

* * *

Kuntz walked up to the plate in the fifth frame with the bases packed and exploded his four bagger over the score board in center field to give the Moose what appeared to be a comfortable, 7 to 0 lead.

But the All-Stors failed to give up at this point and came back to score four runs in their half of the fifth. The losers' best efforts after this was a run in the seventh.

It was an impressive triumph for the Moose lodge team. The All-Stars swept the first two games only to see the Moose club rally to annex the next three.

Champions of the Commercial league with a record of 12 consecutive victories, the two losses scored by the All-Stars were the only ones inflicted by a Mansfield team.

Francis Brown started on the hill for the winners, but had to have help from Bob Schaffer in the fifth. The two moundsmen gave up only five hits.

Mike Rachel toiled for the All-Stars and it was the second straight time the Moose club has defeated him. Rachel limited the Moose to four hits, but Kuntz's homer was the deciding blow. Rachel walked seven and whiffed two batters.

Varga added a triple to the Moose attack, while Blayney paced the All-Stars with a double. Not one player on either team secured more than one hit.

* * *

Manager Farrell Hipp's Moose team today began preparations to travel to Bellevue Sunday to make their second appearance in the district Moose tournament.

Indians Open Series With Detroit Today

Feller and Rowe to Tangle In Mound Duel; Tigers Four Games Out.

DETROIT—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians have changed their minds about the three-game series opening today with the Detroit Tigers.

They had figured for a long time that these games would probably go far toward determining who participates in this year's world series. But now they look upon them mainly as a chance to keep ahead of the New York Yankees.

The Tigers couldn't take first place away from the Tribe even if they swept the series, for Detroit's defeat by Chicago yesterday pushed them four games down.

The Yanks, in second place three and a half games behind, will be playing four games with the weak Washington Senators.

* * *

Manager Oscar Vitt lined up Bob Feller for today and Al Smith for tomorrow against the Tigers. His third game starter is undetermined. Detroit will lead with Schoolboy Rowe today and probably Tommy Bridges tomorrow and Buck Newsom Friday.

The Indians figure their chances favorably against the Yankees on this basis:

The Indians have to play 27 more games but 21 of them will be at home. The Yankees have 28 more to play and most of them are on the road where the New Yorkers have been nothing to fear. If the Indians win 18 out of their 27, the Yanks would have to win 22 to get a tie.

* * *

The Indians feel their two games with New York in Cleveland next Tuesday and Wednesday may go farther in determining the league championship than the remaining nine days of play with Detroit.

Heroes and Goats

THE HEROES: Jimmy Wilson, Reds, who drove in winning run against Cardinals, Jimmy Ripple Reds, who hit homer with one on base, Jack Knott, White Sox who held Tigers to six hits.

THE GOATS: Fred Hutchinson, Tigers, who failed to last first inning when White Sox scored seven runs; Clyde Shoun, Cardinals, who gave up winning run to Reds.

INJURY FORCES BARNEY M'COSKY OUT OF GAME

CHICAGO —(NS)— Another injury had struck the ranks of the Detroit Tigers today and Barney McCoskey, slugging outfielder, will be out of the lineup for at least a week.

The rookie sensation hurt his side attempting a diving catch of Taft Wright's liner yesterday in the White Sox-Tiger game which Chicago won, 10-2. Tucker Stainback will probably fill in until Barney is ready to return to the lineup.

First Congregationals Annex Church Softball Loop Title

THE 1940 Y. M. C. A. Church league championship today belongs to the First Congregational church.

The church's softball team copped the title yesterday when it nosed out the First Lutheran church combine 1 to 0 in a pitchers battle at the Blue Goose field in the final contest of their five-game playoff series. The Congregationals took three of the five games.

* * *

Both teams were held to only three hits by the opposing pitcher. Bob Larson, who worked on the mound for the Congregationals, added to his performance by striking out seven of the Lutherans while Wolf, the Lutheran pitcher struck out only one. Larson walked one batter and Wolf none.

* * *

Neither team was able to score until the fifth inning when Jelliff, Congregational outfielder, scored on Shelley's single.

* * *

A double by Olin of the Congregationals, was the only extra base hit of the game.

Tigers Pin Pennant Hopes On Outcome of Tribe Series

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer).

THE Detroit Tigers backed into the last ditch today in their battle for another American League pennant.

* * *

They came to grips with the front-running Cleveland Indians in the first of nine games the two clubs have left with each other and the prospect for Detroit was disheartening.

* * *

The Tigers lost their fourth straight game yesterday as well as the services of their star centerfielder, Barney McCosky, in a 10-2 debacle against the Chicago White Sox. McCosky hurt his side diving for a fly ball and may be out a week.

With Bob Feller in the box for the Indians today, there was a chance the Tigers might lose hope.

They already have shown a lot more than some of the experts, so called, expected. But the chips are really down in the junior circuit for the next 10 days.

The onruching Yankees expect to fatten themselves at the expense of their favorite stooges, the Washington Senators.

The National League standard-bearer no longer is in doubt. Cincinnati's hitless wonders have been renominated virtually without opposition. The Reds squeezed past the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 yesterday to take an eight game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Detroit never had a chance against the White Sox, giving up seven runs in the first inning. Fred Hutchison loaded the bases right at the start with three walks and all of the runners scored on two singles and an error. Jack Knott pitched shutout ball until the ninth.

This was Chicago's 13th triumph in 20 games over the Tigers, the last eight coming in a row. In contrast, Chicago has been able to win only four out of 19 from the Indians.

* * *

No other games were scheduled yesterday.

Indians Beat Giants To Take Knot-Hole League Title

THE Indians copped the 1940 Knot-Hole league championship by taking the second half of a twin-bill with the Giants at the Fairground park yesterday.

* * *

The Indians nosed out the Giants 8 to 7 in the nightcap to win the title, after losing the opener 12 to 9. Trailing 5 to 7, the Indians pushed across three runs in the fifth inning to win the contest. Hetler was the winning pitcher, giving up six hits, while the Indians collected eight.

* * *

In the opening game, the Giants took a four-run lead in the first inning and were never behind. Fox was the winning pitcher, giving up nine hits. Hetler also pitched the first game for the Indians and allowed 12 safeties.

Mansfield Tygers Launch Practice

are putting forth every effort to be ready for the initial floodlight contest against Akron West at Stadium field Sept. 13.

Impressed by the enthusiasm shown by the squad Snyder and Vern Hoffman, basketball coach, who is working with the backs, were optimistic about the combine's chances of holding its own against such rivals as Massillon, Canton McKinley and New Philadelphia.

"We may not be big, but every team my boys meet will know they face a battling outfit," Snyder said yesterday. "And I don't believe this team will allow any large scores run up against them."

Hoffman showed considerable interest in the backs. "Those four junior backs, who made up the "pony" backfield last year look better than ever and should cause rivals a lot of headaches. And don't forget we've got a number of fine looking sophomores coming up who may press the regulars for starting berths."

Snyder and Hoffman will hold workouts twice daily until the season opens. No scrimmage will be held this week, but the coaches believe the lads will be ready for severe tests by the middle of next week.

Pilot Snyder is anxious to see the lads under pressure for he must select 33 from the large squad to carry the varsity banner. The balance of the sophomores will be employed by Hoffman in building a junior varsity combine.

Only three experienced lettermen are back and Snyder is working hard to place them in important posts.

* * *

Bob Lantz, Martin Henke and George Murray are the veterans. Lantz and Henke are backfield men and Murray is a tackle.

Walters Faces Cards Today

Cincinnati Plays Final Night Game of Season.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Fireman Joe Beggs, who has proven the answer to the Cincinnati Reds' prayers for a relief hurler, probably will enjoy a rest today.

Bucky Walters was called to face Pittsburgh in a night tilt and the ace Cincinnati hurler, who has won 18 games, usually finishes. On the mound opposing him will be Max Butcher.

Fireman Joe, who said he was about to give up professional baseball and go to teaching school when the New York Yankees traded him to the Reds for Lee Grissom last spring, was given credit for a 4-3 Cincinnati triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday.

It was Beggs' ninth victory—all in relief roles. The deadpan righthander went to the rescue of Rookie Witt Guise in the seventh inning. The bases were loaded and only one man was out, but Beggs promptly made Mickey Owen bang into a double play. Johnny Hutchings had started for the Reds and lasted two rounds.

Jimmy Wilson proved he wasn't up to the rocking chair age, although he is 42, by taking things into his own hands for the Reds in the eighth. He drove a screaming double past third to bring in the winning run for the Reds.

* * *

The victory gave the Reds another half length, extending their lead to eight full games over the idle second-place Dodgers, in the National League pennant race.

KEEFE - SPEAR TRIUMPH

Bob Keefe and Bob Spears today had another doubles championship in the record books. The two Mansfielders won the North Central Ohio tennis tournament doubles crown at Galion Sunday with a one-sided win over the Herr - Sloane combine. Spears then beat Keefe, to win the singles championship. The scores of the singles were 5-7, 6-2 and 6-3.

Gridders to Report To Coach Layden Soon

By TOM SILER

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — (AP) — Seventy-five ambitious young muscle men will report to head Coach Elmer Layden next week, but only one of them was a Notre Dame regular in 1939.

* * *

At first glance, this sounds like a doleful report on the always title-minded fighting Irish of 1940, but it is far from that. True, Notre Dame said goodbye to 17 lettermen including 10 starters in June, but the potential stars on Layden's squad are almost a dime a dozen.

* * *

Tom Gallagher, sturdy left tackle, is the only surviving regular from the Irish eleven which won seven of nine games and scored 100 points to 73 for the opposition. But the Irish last season, more conservative than usual, had many a close call, winning only one game by more than a touchdown and four others by three points or less.

But Layden, who gets along quite well without a crying towel, is full of hope and enthusiasm for his 1940 squad.

"They are a great bunch of boys," he says. "You should have seen them work in the spring. We've got about as much speed and talent as we usually have, although we need more reserve power especially at left halfback and center."

Barring injuries, 185-pound Bob Hargrave, firebrand field general, has the quarter-back spot nailed down. He figures to give the team a more daring type of play than the departed Steve Sitko. Bob Sweigau, injured most of last year, will be at left half, little and nimble Steve Bagarus at right half and Capt. Milt Piepul, leading ground gainer last fall, at fullback. Aid for this unit will come from quarterback Walt O'Meara, halfbacks Bill McGannon, Don Hogan, Steve Juzwik, Bernie Crimmins, Joe Prokop, and Fullbacks Al Lee, Joe Postupack and Bob Leonard.

Despite the scarcity of regulars Notre Dame has six lettermen back in the line. Layden is best fixed at the tackles. Letterman Jim Brutz will help Gallagher at left and Paul Lillis and Henry Brosey on the right side. Pete Kelly returns at left guard and 160-pound John Gubanich at right guard and John O'Brien at right end rounds out the available letter winners in the line.

George Rassas, handicapped by injuries in the past, is ticketed to succeed all-America Bill Kerr at left end with Phil Sheridan a likely-looking aide at this spot. Ed Sullivan and Howard Korth rate as the top guard reserves and John Kovatch is O'Brien's aide at end.

The one-two-three centers are gone, leaving Bob Osterman, converted end to handle the spot. The reserve spot is wide open.

* * *

The schedule: Oct. 5—College of the Pacific; 12—Georgia Tech; 19—Carnegie Tech; 26—Illnois at Champaign; Nov. 2—Army at New York; 9—Navy at Baltimore; 16—Iowa; 23—Northwestern at Evanston; Dec. 7—Southern California at Los Angeles.

Picnickers Balk At Menu Planned By Food Hobbyist

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Just a picnicky little snack of dried octopus, rattlesnake meat, preserved snail, birds nest soup, pickled whale meat and smoked oysters will be ready to refresh the appetites of 800 Pythians when they assemble for an outdoor feast soon.

Of course there will be more substantial bits on the meau such as horse meat, cougar, reindeer meat, plus 100-year-old eggs, kippered salmon and sturgeon along with spiced crawfish tails, not to mention roast partridge in jelly.

The Pythian committee started the whole thing when they appointed Claude M. Snow, deputy grand chancellor, to arrange the refreshments.

Snow, a life long hobbyist on fancy cooking and food, immediately launched his plans for a freakish Smorgasbord that would make a gourmand's eyes water.

After looking over his menu and taking a sniff at the dried octopus, which looked like a family of snakes tied in neat Boy Scout knots, less choosey members of the committee voted to have a few tables of sandwiches and watermelons to supplement Snow's culinary triumphs.

PAM— Desperate!

By A. W. Brewerton

THE TRAFFIC PATROLMAN HEARD PAM'S CRY FOR HELP, ALL RIGHT - SAW HER LOOK OF FRIGHT! HE PULLED UP ALONGSIDE THE TAXI'S DRIVER.....
STOP!
OH! THE OFFICER HEARD ME — HE HEARD ME! I THINK — HE — UNDERSTANDS.
HE'S TRYING TO STOP THE CAR — BUT THE MAN WON'T STOP! — HE'S GOING FASTER!

We've no idea what ever became of that plan to make clothes out of skimmed milk. However, we've seen plenty of vests that appeared to be made up of vegetable soup.

The wife of a westerner claims he charged her five dollars weekly for room and board throughout their married life. There's a wonderful idea the ex-sultan of Turkey overlooked.

THE GUMPS— Playing On Her Vanity.

By Gus Edson

YOU ARE SO SWEET TO TAKE SUCH AN INTEREST, YOUR HIGHNESS — BUT I'M SURE MY JEWELS ARE IN A SAFE PLACE—
BUT YOUR SERVANTS — ONE NEVER CAN TELL — SOME OF 'EM ARE PRETTY FOXY—
9-4
AS CLEVER AS FOXES ARE, THEY ALWAYS WIND UP AROUND SOME WOMAN'S NECK — HA-HA-HA — WE GIRLS AREN'T SO DUMB, EH, LADY FIFI?
ER — DO YOU KEEP THE JEWELS IN THE HOUSE?
HA-HA! YES, INDEED, YOUR LORDSHIP — I HAVE THE PERFECT HIDING PLACE FOR THEM—
AH — MY ADMIRATION FOR YOU RISES BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS, FAIR LADY—
NICE GOIN', TOOTS
OH-OH-OH! SHE'S FALLING FOR THAT CROOK'S FLATTERY, WHILE I STAND HELPLESSLY BY — WHY, OH, WHY, MUST I ALWAYS BE FATE'S FOOTBALL?

MORE OF THE WALL IS CRUMBLING!
WELL, THERE'S NO USE TRYING TO FIX THIS AIR COMPRESSOR CABLE NOW. THE MOTOR IS UNDER WATER.
THE AIR IS GETTING BAD IN HERE, TOO!
WE'LL SOON HAVE TO STAND ON THE BENCH TO KEEP OUR HEADS ABOVE WATER.
HOLY NED! I JUST REMEMBERED YOU'VE GOT THOSE IRON WEIGHTS CHAINED TO YOUR ANKLES. YOU CAN'T GET OFF THE FLOOR!

RAILS PACING HESITANT MART RALLY TODAY

Trade Centers on Carriers In Second Hour; Steels Get Lesser Play.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Rails edged a bit ahead, leading a hesitant stock market fractionally higher today.

Most of the mild trading was centered on the carriers toward the second hour, with steel shares getting a lesser portion of the play.

Most traders, however, continued to remain on the sidelines, pending definite developments in the war.

Of interest to operators following industrial trends was the federal reserve bank survey showing an increase of $8,000,000 last week in member loans to business.

Financial circles discussed the proposed federal legislation to permit government contracts to be used as collateral for bank loans. Many experts viewed the bill as opening up a vast field of credit expansion.

'DUPED,' CLAIM OF SIGNERS OF RED PETITIONS

Declare They Believed They Signed for Higher Old Age Pensions.

that the candidates be barred and that a grand jury investigation of the alleged misrepresentation be started.

Secretary of State George Neffner said today that county election boards will be requested to remove the names of persons who submit complaints to the secretary of state or directly to the election boards

No Requests Here Yet.

Neffner said 2,500 of the 34,000 petition signers have already requested their names be withdrawn. No requests had been submitted to the Richland county board at noon today, Clerk A. F. Porter said.

Meanwhile, at Euclid, a suburb of Cleveland, City Councilman Frank Derdich said he would confer with Mayor Kenneth J. Sims today and deny charges that he is a Communist or knowingly signed a Communist petition.

Derdich was suspended as a councilman last night when other members of council found he had signed a petition for Communist candidates. A council committee of three was appointed to investigate charges of Communism.

Derdich said he was willing to give $500 to anyone who could prove that he signed a Communist petition. The petition he signed was one "to keep America out of war," he said.

John Sparks, president of the Richland county organization of the American Security Union, a group of WPA workers, said today he had instructed members of the union who had signed Communist petitions to send affidavits to the state WPA office, disclaiming any Communistic beliefs.

"Our organization is 100 per cent American, and any member who signed the petition was misinformed as to its contents," he said.

Sparks said he represented four of the signers whose names were printed in yesterday's News-Journal. They are Thomas Devine, Mrs. Bertha Devine, Edward Bankhead, and Charles Miller. All four of them told The News-Journal today that they are not Communists and signed the petitions because they were told they were for the Bigelow pension plan.

Statements from the 10 who protested follow:

HAZEL PRATHER, 371 North Mulberry street—"The only petition me and my husband ever signed in the past year was one given us to support Bigelow. I have an uncle who is elderly and crippled and I wanted to help him get as much of a pension as he could. My husband's name was printed too but the one he signed was for Bigelow."

(John Prather, 371 N. Mulberry street, was also among the petition signers.)

HENRY GINTTER, 20 N. Main street — "I remember the time when I signed a petition and it was for Bigelow. I don't want anything to do with Communists ever."

NICK TANEFF, 210 Bowman street—"The petition was not fully explained to me. I thought it was for higher wages and a reduction of taxes. I am satisfied with the form of government we have and am not in favor of a change. I think this is the best form of government in the whole world and I am sorry that I signed the petition. But it was entirely a mistake."

MATHIAS ZIWAY, 116 Lewis street—"I want my name off that petition. I'm no Communist and I don't want to be. The man who asked me to sign said he wanted to get a new candidate in the field, and I thought it was all right."

REV. C. E. BANKHEAD, 11 Harmon avenue—The petition I signed was represented to me as one favoring the Bigelow plan to get more old age pensions. I'm not a Communist, and I want my name withdrawn from the petition."

CHARLES MILLER, R. D. — Mansfield—"I am not a Communist. I signed the petition in the belief that it was intended to raise old age pension payments."

THOMAS DEVINE, R. D. 2 Mansfield—"Both my wife (Mrs. Bessie Devine) and I were told that the petitions we were signing were for a candidate who favored the Bigelow pension plan. I didn't read the petition, but both my wife and I signed it. Neither is a Communist. If we had known it was a Communist petition we would not have signed it. We don't believe in the Communist theory, and we aren't Communists."

PEARL MITTEN, 93 Sleeker (at time of signing) — I signed the Communist petition thinking at the time that it was all right for the Communist party to go on the ballot but I realized soon afterward that it was a mistake. I in-

If your name was published as a signer of a Communist petition and you did not sign, your denial will be printed if you will call The News-Journal. In this way, you will also assist the Richland county election board in making its check for fraud. If you signed the petitions in the belief they were for something else than for the Communist party, your explanation will be published if you will call The News-Journal.

another force of German planes crossed the coast this morning and attempted to bomb airdromes in Kent and Essex, but that only a few got through British defenses and that no serious damage or casualties were caused so far as was known.

While the Nazi raiders were being driven away from the capital, other German warplanes were reported to have fanned out over England and Wales in scattered pre-dawn bombing attacks which caused some casualties and destroyed a number of houses in coastal areas.

Most of the attacks during the night, the government said, were directed against towns in northwest England and in the Bristol channel area, although a few bombs were dropped in rural areas in the northeast and in Scotland.

A communique said the day's aerial activity resulted in the destruction of 25 German planes and the loss of 15 British aircraft. Eight British pilots, however, were said to be safe.

(The Germans put yesterday's British air losses at 54 planes and their own at 12.)

British Bombers and Nazi Fighters Clash

BERLIN—(AP)—Crossing paths with Nazi planes headed for raids on England, squadrons of British Bombers clashed with German fighters west of Berlin last night in an action which informed sources described as central Germany's first big engagement of the war.

Only a "few" of the British planes succeeded in reaching Berlin, the high command said, but they were seen crossing and recrossing the city. No bombs were reported dropped in the capital. Residents, however, were kept in their cellars during a two and a half hour alarm.

Four or five of the British bombers were reported shot down by heavy anti-aircraft fire and German fighters. Another of the raiders was reported brought down by the cable of a barrage balloon.

Authorized sources said "lively activity of German and English planes was observable in the Magdeburg region," about 70 miles west of Berlin, apparently the site of the main battle.

The high command said "scattered bombs" were dropped in the province of Brandenburg, in the region of Braunschweig, 110 miles west of Berlin, and Halberstadt, about 200 miles west.

Two squadrons of British bombers, avoiding the Ruhr defense zone, were broken up and turned back at the Elbe, this source said.

The use of German fighting planes in air defense was a departure in German tactics. Germans rarely have mentioned any other weapon but anti-aircraft guns in repelling British raids.

For unstated parts of the use of barrage balloons similar to Britain's also was a departure. [illegible] the German high command would keep up the experiment [illegible]

Main, and Blymyer avenue the entire length.

Meanwhile, in preparation for installation of parking meters in downtown Mansfield, work will begin within the next 30 days on the widening of North and South Park streets.

City council cleared the way for the improvement last night by approving a $700 appropriation to cover the cost of cutting back the curbs on the park side of both streets.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said the project had been talked about for years but that it was deemed advisable to do the work now since the installation of parking meters would be started within a few weeks.

Plans call for eliminating the grass plot between the curb and the sidewalk, thereby widening the streets approximately three and a half feet.

Crafton said that the project would be started immediately and should be completed this month. The Ohio Public Service company, he said, had agreed to place the white way lights on the park side of the sidewalk.

Burials To Write Finis To 3-Year Columbus Mystery

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Separate funeral services tomorrow will write "Finis" across the solved mystery of the disappearance of three Columbus men March 27, 1937.

The badly-decomposed skeletons of the three victims—Verl R. Billingsley, 45, James Shadrach, 36, and Robert Barr 44—were recovered yesterday along with an automobile from the bottom of the Scioto river.

The three men were the object of a nation-wide search at time of their disappearance three years ago. Billingsley was assistant director of ticket sales at Ohio State university.

They were last seen leaving a Columbus cafe. Police theorized today that Billingsley lost control of his car and it plunged into the river with its three passengers.

Eugene Stuchy and Albert Miller, two fishermen, Saturday uncovered the first clue to the mystery when the anchor of their boat tangled with the submerged auto. A spot of oil appeared on the river surface. Stuchy notified police and the car and bodies were raised yesterday with a cable.

morning was mostly taken up by assigning classrooms, handing out of books, and giving instructions for tomorrow.

Heavy mental gymnastics will begin Thursday, with the teachers really getting down to business at the first of next week.

Cafeterias in the two Junior high schools and Senior high school were open for teachers today. Students will be served tomorrow.

Jesse Beer, Senior high school principal, said this morning that a teachers meeting would be held at the high school at 2 p. m. today.

More than 1400 pupils are expected to report to the school by tomorrow morning, Beer said. If expectations are reached, the Senior high school will have more students than in any other time in its history.

Only 844 were registered when the new Senior high school was opened in 1927, Beer stated further.

St Peter's school held its half-day session yesterday with full-day classroom activities getting under way today. Although an accurate check on the number of students reporting yesterday had not been made today, it was estimated that 1,000 students were on hand for the opening half-day session.

Rural and Madison Township schools were also operating on a full day schedule today. Like the St. Peter's school, their halfday session was held yesterday.

LAY BRICK ON W. 4TH TODAY

Workmen Show Progress in Installing New Curbs.

With piles of brick lined up along the curb between North Diamond and North Mulberry streets, actual paving is scheduled to start this afternoon.

Safety-Service Director C. M. Crafton said today that he did not believe the paving could be completed before Sept. 16 since new curbing must be laid along the blocks between North Main and Mulberry streets.

Shortly after noon today workmen began laying curbs east from the Walnut street intersection.

250 PRESENT AT CORN ROAST

Richland County Fish and Game association opened its fall season last night by staging a corn roast at the John C. Friday farm, Park avenue west road.

About 250 gathered to eat the 50 dozen ears of corn and the 50 pounds of wieners prepared for the event.

Motion pictures were shown by Floyd Dent and Paul Caddish. A coon chase to be held Sept. 20 at Spiker's Grove was announced at the meeting.

DAY COMES OUT FOR RE-ELECTION

Files Petition Bearing 223,000 Names In Columbus Today.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Judge Arthur H. Day of the Ohio supreme court, who stayed out of the Republican primary in May, today formally launched his campaign for re-election by filing a nominating petition bearing an anounced 223,751 signatures.

The petition, for which only 24,600 signatures were required qualifies him for a place on the Nov. 5 ballot.

A candidate for the term beginning Jan. 2, the Clevelander avoided the primary, he said, because he had neither the time nor funds for a campaign.

The Republicans nominated former Atty. Gen. Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati, who with Judge MacBride Columbus Democrat, will oppose Day in the November election.

mission and French authorities on Japanese demands for the passage of Japanese troops through Indo-China.

So far as the French were concerned, it was believed, there would be no resistance to the Japanese. But the Chinese were expected to cross the border from Yunnan province and advance along the Indo-China Yunnan railway, destroying communications ahead of the Japanese and planting ambushes in mountain passes and swamps, where the Japanese could not use their mechanized equipment.

Reliable quarters said that Gen. Kanji Nishihara, chief of the Japanese mission to French Indo-China, had advised the Indo-China colonial government that Japanese troops would enter the French colony on Friday.

Authoritative quarters here said that during the last two weeks the Japanese had reduced drastically their north and central China garrisons and apparently were sending the troops to Hainan island, off the southeast coast of China, in readiness to invade the French colony.

As a result of the reduced north China garrisons guerrilla warfare has broken out on a greatly increased scale.

The China Mail of Hong Kong reported that a Japanese fleet was cruising off French Indo-China, blockading the entire northeast coast and halting all vessels in the area. Officials here were unable to confirm the report.

Asks Council For Permit To Erect Two Billboards

City council's street committee had before it today a request from the T. R. Sammons company for permission to construct billboards on two tracts of city property.

Sammons asked council for permission to build a billboard on a playground east of the armory for which he proposed to pay $10 a year and on a plot just west of the Pennsylvania railroad underpass on Park avenue east between Oak street for which he proposed a fee of $20 a year.

The request was turned over to the street committee last night by Council President H. G. Miller.

Council approved a change of name for two streets, changing Ludwig avenue to Brickman avenue, and South Park boulevard to Fairlawn avenue.

A petition requesting the vacation of an alley running from Bartley avenue between Cline and Sloane avenues was referred to the street committee.

ever, pointed out that it was council's moral obligation to see that the funds were distributed annually among the five departments as had been proposed.

The tentative distribution calls for approximately half of the annual revenue going towards the improvements of the fire department, a total of $17,000 proposed for new equipment and $7,500 for four additional firemen. Approximately $10,000 annually would go to the police department for four additional patrolmen and improving the police radio system, although it was pointed out that the figure could be cut providing the proposed installation of parking meters brought in the necessary revenue.

A total of $10,000 would go towards maintaining supervised playgrounds $5,000 for permanent improvements at the airport, and another $7,500 for park improvements.

It was suggested that any of the latter three could be increased should the parking meter revenue provide for increase of the police department.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS SPEAKER TELL OF EARLY OHIO HOMES

A fascinating story of old Ohio homes was told at Tuesday's meeting of the Mansfield Rotary club by Mrs. Marguerite Jones McCullum, of Granville, student of early architecture and writer on this and associated subjects.

During the course of the talk given by Mrs. McCullum, listeners were taken on a verbal tour of northeastern, southern and central Ohio, with stops at points of interest in many cities, towns and rural sections in which striking examples of various early types of home and church architecture are still to be found.

This meeting marked return to the Mansfield-Leland hotel, July and August meetings having been held at Westbrook Country club. Alfred M. Colby was chairman of the meeting at which C. G. Hilber, club president, presided.

Next Tuesday the Mansfield club will be guests at an inter-city meeting at Ashland Country club, with golf in the afternoon and a program following the dinner at 6:30 p. m.

House Draft Foes Revive Enlistment Trial Amendment

TRY TO ADOPT PLAN SENATE HAD REJECTED

Conscription Backers Still Claim Victory, But Agree Ship Swap Cost Votes.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—House foes of the pending conscription bill rallied today behind a proposal for a 60-day postponement of the draft to permit a further trial of the voluntary enlistment system.

As this drive started, many conceded that it was a forlorn hope in view of the fact that the senate rejected the same suggestion by a vote of 43 to 41.

Rep. Fish (R-NY), however, serving notice he would offer the amendment, expressed belief that its chances had been improved measurably by President Roosevelt's destroyer-defense base deal with Great Britain.

Even proponents of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription measure agreed that the destroyer transfer, coming in the face of strong congressional opposition, had cost the bill votes but said the defections would not be numerous enough to jeopardize passage.

The house will not get around to voting on any amendments until tomorrow but interest continued to center chiefly on the general subject of giving the government peacetime power to commandeer industrial plants if their owners balk at taking defense contracts.

Sentiment seemed generally against the Overton-Russell amendment adopted by the senate which would empower the army or navy to condemn and acquire ownership of such plants.

During the first day of the house debate on the precedent-breaking Burke-Wadsworth bill, the oratory subsided to a desultory pace after the first hour and there was little or no mention of the major difference between the house and senate measures on age provisions.

The senate's version would limit conscription to men from the ages of 21 through 30, whereas the house would make the age bracket from 21 through 44.

Schools Started, Warns Motorists To Use Caution

A stern warning to motorists to drive cautiously in the vicinity of Mansfield's schools and to exercise special care at all street crossings used by school children was issued by Police Chief Meade K. Bates today as the city's 7,200 pupils returned to their classes.

"Every driver will be held strictly accountable for any accident," Bates said resolutely. "And there are no 'ifs or 'ands' about it."

The chief explained that he was issuing special instructions to all members of the police force to see that drivers not only obey traffic rules but that they use extra caution in all school areas.

Assisting police in making streets safe for school children will be the schoolboy patrol which will guard all crossings at public school buildings throughout the city.

LET CONTRACTS ON CITY JOBS

Darling Company Lowest on Grading, Sanitary Sewer Projects.

Contracts for grading and sanitary sewer work on four Mansfield streets will be let within the next two days, according to Safety-Service Director C. M. Crafton who today had completed study of bids for the work which were opened at noon yesterday.

Lowest bidder on all three jobs was the R. O. Darling and Son company.

The Darling bid for installation of a sanitary sewer on Park avenue west and Glenbeck lane was $3,071.80. Other bids were G. H. Leach company, $7,089.50; and the Federal Engineering company, $5,530.30.

For a sanitary sewer on Taylor road the Leach company submitted a bid of $3,385.50 and the Federal engineering company a bid of $3,445.00. The Darling bid was $1,483.50.

Sole bid of $816.50 for gravel or $886.50 for slag grading of Lind avenue was submitted by R. O. Darling and Son.

JENKINS CALLS FDR 'CARELESS'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Thomas Jenkins (R., Ohio), in a statement made public by the Republican national committee, says President Roosevelt was "careless" with figures in his Chickamauge (Tenn.) speech Monday.

He quoted the president as saying: "My memory is that the engineers told me that from floods alone the average annual damage in the Tennessee valley was about $250,000,000."

Jenkins said army engineers in a 1930 report on the Tennessee river estimated the average annual damage from floods was $1,780,000.

16-MILL TAX RATE LOOMS AS COUNCIL OKS CITY'S LEVY

City residents will find their tax rate unchanged for the year 1941 and Mansfield will probably again be among the lowest-taxed cities of its size in the state if the budget submitted to council by the county budget commission and accepted at a meeting last night is permitted to stand.

Council passed a resolution accepting the commission's tentative budget which fixes the total tax rate for the city at 16 mills. This figure does not include, of course, the proposed additional one-mill levy for operating five city departments which will be submitted to voters in September.

It does include county, township, conservancy district, school and city revenue.

According to the tentative budget distribution of the 16 mills would be as follows:

County total, 2.5 mills; township, .13 mills; conservancy district, .40 mills; schools, 8.10 mills; city, 4.7 mills.

Passage of the special one-mill levy would increase the city total to 5.87 and the general total for Mansfield residents to 17 mills.

All levies above the ten-mill limitation fixed by state statute have been approved by popular vote. They are, county, .50 mills; conservancy district, .40 mills; schools, 3.70 mills; and city, 1.40 mills.

Acceptance of tentative budgets by other subdivisions in county outside Mansfield must be received by the county budget commission before the rate is definitely fixed. Such acceptance is expected shortly.

REGISTER 150 ALIENS HERE

350 Others Obtain Blanks For Registration; Aid Offered Postoffice.

Nearly 500 application blanks for alien registration have been passed out to aliens in Mansfield and vicinity since Aug. 20, Postmaster H. E. Homberger announced today.

In addition, 150 aliens have officially registered, fingerprinted, and had their records sent to the department of justice in Washington, Homberger said.

Homberger also said there was no way of telling just how many aliens there were in this vicinity, but that applicants keep coming into his office for blanks at a steady rate.

Postoffice officials also said that the Friendly House settlement had offered its services to the postoffice during the registration period. It is part of a national plan of the National Federation of Settlements, of which the Friendly house is a member.

Although it was not known today what the nature of the aid would be, Homberger said that if the Friendly House would help aliens with filling out their application blanks it would be of considerable help.

SHOPLIFTERS, FOUR OTHERS GET FINES IN MUNY COURT TODAY

A charge of shoplifting headed the docket in municipal court today as Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch assessed five fines and handed out one jail sentence.

Joe Young, Detroit, faced the shoplifting charge filed by Carl Erre, an employe of the H. L. Reed company. Police reports indicated that officers had been called to the Reed company at 5:30 Tuesday. They apprehended Young who was charged with taking 20 pairs of sox valued at $10.

Young was also charged with intoxication. He pleaded guilty to both counts and was given 30 days in county jail on the shoplifting charge and a fine of $25 for intoxication. The fine was suspended on condition that he leave the city immediately after completing his jail sentence.

Paul Sturgeon, Chilton avenue, and William Ferguson, Ashland, each was fined $10 and costs on charges of speeding filed by state highway patrolmen.

Jacob Fisher, R. D. 5, was given a fine of $3 and costs when he pleaded guilty to charges of failure to stop for a stop sign. He was apprehended by the highway patrol.

Elizabeth White, whose address was given as 278 North Main street, was fined $10 and costs when she pleaded guilty to a charge of fighting.

LABOR BOARD OPENS HEARINGS

Hears Appeal of Dominion Electric Workers Asking Bargaining Unit.

A National Labor Relations Board hearing of a case involving 18 tool makers employed by the Dominion Electric company, Mansfield, was opened today before Examiner Max W. Johnstone of Cleveland at the Richland county courthouse.

The hearing, postponed from Aug. 26, was ordered by the Cleveland office of the NLRB after the International Association of Machinists, an A. F. of L. affiliate, filed a petition with the board, asking recognition of the 18 tool makers as a collective bargaining unit.

The petition is contested by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, a CIO union, which served as the bargaining agent for all of the Dominion employes in obtaining a contract which expires soon. The plant employs more than 350 workers.

Under the petition filed by the A. F. of L. union, the plant's 18 tool makers would be recognized as a bargaining unit separate from other workers in the plant. They would then be eligible to negotiate their own wage and hour contract.

Soon after Dominion signed an agreement with the CIO union, the International Association of Machinists filed a similar petition, asking for exclusive representation. The labor board at that time, however, refused to alter the existing contract.

MERCHANTS GET PLANS SET FOR FOUR-DAY 'FAIR'

Carnival Concessions To Be Obtained for Fourth Street Event to Open Sept. 18.

Dates were set and plans definitely under way today for a four-day street fair to celebrate the opening of West Fourth street between North Diamond and Mulberry streets following a meeting of 23 merchants last night at the Moose lodge.

George Satterlee, temporary chairman, announced this morning that the fair will be held Sept. 18, 19, 20 and 21. Originally the event had been scheduled for a week earlier but a check with the contractor and city officials early today caused postponement to the dates announced by Satterlee.

Free street dancing, a "mutt parade," concessions and special attractions are being scheduled.

Committees appointed at last night's meeting to handle details include: concessions — Eugene Spain, Pete Di Sanze, Vaughn Bates, C. D. Huff; carnival—C. C. Herrick, Spain, Bates; entertainment — George Satterlee, Phil Metzger, Bob Black; finance—Howard Miller, B. M. Banks and Black.

Members of the concessions committee are in Shelby today arranging to bring a number of attractions from the Shelby street fair to Mansfield for the Fourth street fiesta.

Another meeting of Fourth street merchants to further plans for the fair will be held in The News-Journal office Thursday at 7 p. m.

STRICKEN IN CUBA

NEW YORK—(AP)—George S. Ward, 73, a founder and former president of the Ward Baking company, died in Cuba last night.

Mayor Starts Out To 'Scout' Cities With Park Meters

Declaring he wanted to "get away from all this high pressure salesmanship," Mayor William J. Locke today set out on a "hide-away" tour of the Pittsburgh area to inspect parking meters in use in cities of that vicinity.

"There are approximately 25 cities around Pittsburgh using meters of the various types we are considering for Mansfield," the mayor said, "and I plan to visit a number of these cities today and tomorrow to find out just which meter is the most satisfactory."

Locke left Mansfield by automobile this morning, planning to return Thursday.

The mayor said he had asked several other city officials to accompany him but that they had declined. He refused to name the exact cities he would visit.

"Somebody thought he had discovered one of them," the mayor said, "and I've been swamped with calls already." Locke indicated he "didn't want any company representatives waiting to meet him and show him around."

CONDITION IMPROVED

Friends in Mansfield have been advised that George B. Kirschbaum, 97½ North Main street, who was taken ill while on a vacation trip is improving at a hospital in Petoskey, Mich.

WARNS GARBAGE SERVICE PATRONS

Secretary Says Collections to Cease at Delinquent Homes.

Residents with unpaid garbage collection bills were warned today by Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the city water department, that delinquent lists are being made up and will be completed this week.

As soon as the lists are completed, Lingafelter said, they will be turned over to drivers with instructions not to collect garbage from homes where owners are delinquent.

Water department employes estimated that approximately 250 bills were now delinquent.

OPERATORS— SET-UP MEN

One of the largest manufacturers of government and commercial aircraft parts is looking for the type of man that can be entrusted with precision work.

Possibly in this area there are men who have been expert machinists in the past but due to circumstances have not followed that trade, but in a brief period could get the feel of a machine with very little effort.

To such men we direct this advertisement. Age is not a vital factor. Experience and ability are necessary. We are interested particularly in operators and set-up men for Libby, Gisholt, Potter & Johnston, and Warner & Swasey 2A and 3A machines.

Applicants are asked to outline their experience thoroughly, supplying a photo if available.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1940.

The Hatch effort to clean up politics may at least be regarded as another "noble experiment."

They may not realize it at the time but the more fortunate people are those who get their spankings before they grow up.

The defense program is one of those things that must be right the first time—if it fails we can't "try something else."

Names On Communist Petitions

EVIDENCE of forgery and fraud already disclosed in some Ohio counties, in connection with petitions seeking to place a Communist party ticket on the November ballot, has been sufficient to justify closer scrutiny than is ordinarily given such matters.

As in a number of larger counties of the state, where signatures were in greater numbers and where forgery and misrepresentation immediately became apparent, The News-Journal deemed it advisable to print, in its yesterday's editions, the names of the 48 Mansfield and Richland county persons purported to have signed the Communist party petition. This gives opportunity for each of those whose names appears on petitions filed at the office of the secretary of state in Columbus to learn of this fact, so that steps can be taken to remove such signatures, if any, as are forged or were secured by misrepresentation of the purposes of the petition.

Following a check in the secretary of state's office, in which ten of the total of 58 names bearing Mansfield or Richland county addresses were held to be illegible, these petitions are to be sent to the Richland county board of elections for final check-up as to voting qualifications and authenticity of signature of each person whose name appears thereon.

As was stated in the article in connection with the list of names in yesterday's paper. The News-Journal asks that any of the persons whose names are on the petitions without authorization or through misrepresentation, make this fact known to this newspaper. so that denial or explanation can be published.

Meanwhile it appears fair to withhold judgment in the matter of persons whose names have become associated, as petition-signers, with the Communist party group in Mansfield and vicinity, until after each has had opportunity to express his or her views on the subject of Communism as opposed to Americanism.

More Than Million Federal Jobholders

UNLESS reduction of unemployment is argued in attempted justification for multiplication of government jobs, many taxpayers may find it hard to understand why operation of the executive branch of federal government should require employment of more than a million persons—as is now the case, according to report by the civil service commission, which states the exact total as 1,011,066.

This is in contrast with 568,345 employes at the close of the last year of the Hoover administration and means the addition of more than a billion dollars a year to the government payroll.

With mounting taxes and a new peak of federal debt, taxpayers and persons familiar with the operation of private business, may be inclined to wonder why no steps are taken to eliminate overlapping bureaus and abolish unnecessary jobs instead of continuing the wasteful extravagances which now make it difficult to finance an adequate defensive program.

If, as is sometimes surmised, there has been a distribution of government jobs with a view to giving "work" to active politicians who would otherwise be unable to make a living, it would seem only fair that such intent should be frankly stated and that the surplusage of federal employes should be chosen from relief rolls rather than by partisan preferment.

Inability to find legitimate employment might at least be made a requirement for appointment to any non-essential public job.

The Passing of Dr. Brown

PROBABLY no other professional relationship seems so close as that between the family physician and those whose ills he attends through many years.

It is from association such as this that many in Mansfield and vicinity will regard the passing of Dr. Charles G. Brown as a personal loss of one who had been their medical counsellor and friend for more than a third of a century.

Native of Washington township, and resident of Mansfield and Richland county during his entire life, Dr. Brown retained an agricultural interest which gave diversity to his professional career in an ideal way.

In his affiliation with county, state and national medical associations Dr. Brown was esteemed as a creditable representative of the high standards of his profession. This recognition of worthiness, fine character and untiring devotion to his calling also extended to his associates of the medical fraternity in Mansfield and to all who knew him as physician, friend or acquaintance.

There will be regret tha Dr. Brown could not have been granted more years of service in his profession, and inspiration to those who are coming into it, but it may be that, in his thirty-six years of the practice of medicine, he accomplished more than is ordinarily achieved in a longer lifetime devoted to other pursuits.

Conscription By Taxation

THERE has been much loose talk and lack of definition and understanding in the matter of "conscription of wealth." No sensible American, whether private citizen or public official, is so foolish as to expect the government to demand or congress to vote a law literally authorizing seizure of all the wealth of this country. The only wealth conscription to be foreseen in this republic is by the old familiar process of taxation. A really intelligent tax law would prevent war profiteering and, via income taxation, would "conscript" a good bit of American wealth.

As for the industrial draft amendment added to the conscription bill by the senate, General Hugh Johnson, who is quick to see and to speak out against encroachments on American liberty, says it isn't the frightful thing its critics call it, at all.

He says the actual amendment is "perfectly correct in principle." Though imperfectly worded, it amounts to no more than "the usual and frequent peacetime process of condemning a right-of-way for a railroad across a farm." It authorizes the government to take private property for public use, but includes paying "just compensation" for it.

Great Britain To Get Needed Destroyers

DETERMINATION of the United States to give Great Britain all possible aid, "short of war," in its efforts to defeat the totalitarian powers of Europe, is further evidenced by the exchange of fifty over-age destroyers for naval and air bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

In carrying through this exchange with its legality approved by his attorney general but without congressional sanction, President Roosevelt had indicated belief in the existence of a desperate situation in which further delay would seriously jeopardize the future of the British Isles, and, in consequence, the security of the United States against foreign aggression.

Interpretations of the president's action by senators and congressmen are so varied as to provide no impartial estimate of the probable effects of this precedent-shattering decision.

Considered by some statesmen as the best possible defense move, it is viewed by others as a definite further step toward participation in the war—but considered in the light of the past year's developments in Europe and the present totalitarian onslaught on what remains of the world's democracies, preservation of the principles of human freedom and the rights of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" seems to rest heavily on unified action by the United States and Great Britain, for neither—alone—is equal to the task of successfully coping with the military might that has swept in a destructive wave over Europe and is now aiming toward world domination.

While the intent of hemispheric defense is obvious in the location of proposed new naval and air bases, with protection of the Panama Canal as an important objective, this is no more than a reiteration of the long recognized principles of the Monroe Doctrine, with which Great Britain has been in full accord and the British navy an ever-ready assurance of enforcement.

And, as a part of the exchange agreement, assurance has been given by Great Britain that it "will never surrender or sink the British fleet, in the event of waters surrounding the British Isles becoming untenable. . : . "

Any fear entertained by some Americans that Hitler and his associated brigands may regard this transfer of destroyers to Great Britain as unneutral, or even as "an act of war," is needless worry as Hitler's hatred of the United States is grounded in this country's participation in that part of the World war which ended on November 11, 1918, and will not be affected, one way or the other, by what was done since—or is being done now.

In his announcement of completion of exchange negotiations yesterday President Roosevelt said: "This is not inconsistent in any sense with our status of peace. Still less is it a threat against any nation. It is an epochal and far-reaching act of preparation for continental defense in the face of grave danger."

It is toward maintaining the "status of peace" that all defensive efforts are now being directed—expenditure of billions of dollars for planes and armament, proposed conscription of manpower and of industrial production facilities if necessary, unified defense agreement with Canada, understandings with South American countries, additional air and naval bases at strategic points—all in the interest of maintaining peace instead of being forced into a defensive war against aggression.

And it has been decided that the best immediate defensive action is transfer of fifty destroyers for use by Great Britain —coupled with the most rapid possible flow of planes, munitions and other military supplies.

Such a course seems most likely to be effective in keeping the war on the other side of the Atlantic ocean instead of letting it come over here.

Both Disregard Political Maxims

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — One thing about this presidential campaign is that neither of the candidates follows all the old political saws and maxims. This might be understood about Wendell Willkie. He is a rank amateur in politics. But F. D. R. is generally admitted to be one of the shrewdest politicians of the age, so when he violates rules which experience has taught the old masters were sound it is a cause for wonderment.

Most notable recent example was the attack of the president on Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, followed by the attack on Willkie by Harold L. Ickes in his "reply" to the westerner's acceptance address.

THE president, it will be recalled, told a gathering of newspapermen at the White House that Senator Johnson was no longer a Progressive. Ickes warned the country over the radio that one of the disasters which would accompany Willkie's election would be that Johnson would become chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and that Ham-Fish would be chairman of the house foreign affairs committee.

It just so happens that this particular "fear" with regard to Johnson's becoming chairman of the foreign relations committee is a bit premature. It would take a lot of senatorial funerals to make it possible, funerals of Democratic senators from doubtful states. There are so many Democratic senators that the Republicans would have to have two successive landslides — that is in 1940 and again in 1942—to enable them to control the senate and name the chairmen of committees.

But the importance here is not whether Johnson is "no longer a Progressive," nor whether there is any chance of his becoming chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. It is the intent behind the attacks.

AT THE time the attacks were made, Johnson was a candidate in all three parties for the senatorial nomination—Democratic, Republican and Progressive. Information from every source available to this writer was that he was certain to win both the Democratic and Republican nominations, and it was realized of course that the Progressive nomination was not important.

Yet with this information, which was certainly at the president's disposal, he chose to issue an attack calculated to make Hiram Johnson furious. And this despite the fact that in 1932 Johnson, although sitting as a Republican in the senate, spoke in favor of Roosevelt in California, and that in 1936 he did not turn a hand to oppose F. D. R.'s re-election.

At the time, also, nothing had been said or hinted by Johnson to show that he was particularly favorable to Willkie's candidacy. Also, several things had happened which might be figured as likely to whittle down the enormous Democratic majority in California. One of these was that Dr. Townsend, the old age pensions advocate, who is by way of being a political idol in southern California, has come out for Willkie. The other is Ickes' pushing San Francisco around on the Hetch Hetchy power issue.

It would seem to boil down to this, that Roosevelt is so bitter against Johnson because Johnson opposed him on the supreme court and other issues that he didn't care a rap about the consequences, especially as he undoubtedly thinks he can carry California even with Johnson openly fighting him.

Health and Diet

Football Hazard To Young Players.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE just been sitting in on a conference between an orthopedic surgeon and a young, would-be football star. The young man is 19 years old and looks as husky as a heavyweight champ. He has been playing football, but was slowed up by something the matter with his back.

The orthopedic surgeon said something like this to him: "I don't know how much good it will do, but I am going to forbid you to play football next fall, and I don't know whether you will be able to play a year from now or not. To tell you the truth, I think you should never play football again.

"You are very typical of hundreds of young men I see. Your muscles have developed completely but your bony structure is still soft. From the outside, at a casual glance, you look fine. But actually any strain might permanently cripple you.

"I ought to know what I am talking about. I am the medical adviser to two high schools, and year after year I see the same thing. The only mistakes I make are when I get soft-hearted and am persuaded to allow some boy to play football when I really think he shouldn't. Every day in my office I see men permanently injured as a result of play football in high school."

Football's a Punishing Game.

It would be patronizing to say I agreed with this doctor. I believe football is too severe a game for anyone to play during the high school age. Last year about this time I argued to that effect in this column and I was the recipient of a sheaf of letters from football coaches telling me that I was all wet and that football had become a perfectly safe game. It was hardly two weeks later that I saw an item in the paper to the effect that a young man, in a college football team, had sustained an injury that necessitated the amputation of one leg. That doesn't sound as if they had made the game completely safe.

When Bones Are Pliable.

High school football is more dangerous than college football in exact proportion to the difference in age of the players. With all the bones of the body still pliable at the ages of fourteen to eighteen, it is natural that permanent injury to the back and other joints may occur. No amount of protective equipment can prevent that.

But another danger of high school football is that the players are not adequately protected, the athletic associations of high schools not being able to afford the expenditure that the more prosperous university associations can afford.

Timely Editorial

New Day For Tolerance.

By his prompt move to make Father Coughlin a political orphan, Wendell Willkie has assumed a leadership in tolerance which has been too long delayed in America. There is no place in the world where political speeches based upon appeals to racial and religious prejudices are so inappropriate as in the United States. There has been too much stirring of class hatreds in the last seven years. Mr. Willkie makes clear that he will have nothing to do with any such attempts. In that he proves his clear conception of the genuine American spirit of fair play.—Toledo Blade.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Cause of Slow Plane Production; Blitzkrieg Upset Expansion Plans

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The behind-the-scenes struggle over taxes on national defense orders, together with the sit-down staged by certain manufacturers until taxes are adjusted to suit them, is one of the most important developments in the capital this summer.

It is a mixed story. Some business firms have been 100 per cent patriotic in their attempt to aid national defense. On the other hand, a great many have not. Some have been very much like British and French munitions firms in their procrastination over vital war orders.

The story goes back to November 8, 1939, when John Hanes, then under secretary of the treasury, submitted a confidential memorandum to the president advising that industry would have to be given tax concessions if it was to expand for national defense. Specifically, Hanes pointed out that airplane manufacturers could not be expected to build new plants to speed up production if, after a year or two, the war would be over and they would be left with empty plants on their hands.

So Hanes proposed that the cost of these new plants be amortized in a relatively short time so that industry would not have to pay taxes on them after the war emergency was over.

Morgenthau's Idea.

ROOSEVELT approved this proposal. But when the Hanes memorandum went back to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, it ran into stormy weather. In fact, this memo was one of the things over which Morgenthau and his under secretary quarreled.

Hanes and Morgenthau both are millionaires, both able men. But Hanes, a director of the Glenn Martin Aircraft Corporation, looks at taxes more from the businessman's viewpoint, while Morgenthau looks at taxes from the viewpoint of collecting money to run the government.

Therefore, Morgenthau told Roosevelt that he would secure enough factory expansion from the airplane companies, but instead of taking it out of government tax revenue, he would make the French and British pay for it. He pointed out that the Allies were placing large airplane orders, and that they could pay American factories a higher price in order to finance plant enlargement and new machine tools.

This seemed a good idea to Roosevelt, and on Nov. 10 he decided to make Morgenthau coordinator for the sale of airplanes to France and Great Britain. Later, on Dec. 6, Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles approved a plan whereby the treasury rather than the state department passed on the shipment of airplanes to the Allies.

Hitler Gums Works.

THE Morgenthau idea seemed to work all right during the winter, and the Allies laid plans for spending about $7,000,000 on U. S. factory expansion. They didn't do this very willingly, but Louis Johnson, hardboiled assistant secretary of war, saw to it that they didn't get the latest types of planes unless they paid extra for plant expansion, and Morgenthau backed him up.

Thus the British paid $739,000 to the Curtiss aircraft company for putting in new tools not only for British but for new U. S. planes.

One factor upset this program—namely, Adolf Hitler. For by the time he had gone into Norway, Belgium and Holland it became apparent that the United States was going to need airplanes a great deal faster than either the British or the United States could finance plant expansion—in fact, much faster than anyone could build new plants.

Companies Fear Taxes.

SHORTLY after the invasion of the Low Countries, the British entered into a deal with the war department and—they thought—with Ford to manufacture 9,000 Rolls Royce airplane motors, 6,000 for Britain and 3,000 for the United States. The price was increased somewhat in order to take care of the extra expense to be incurred by Ford in equipping his plant, and congress rushed through a special apporpriation of $43,500,000 to pay for the order.

Then Ford reneged on the British end of the order and the offer was made to Packard, which immediately raised the question of tax amortization. In other words, Packard said that if they were to enlarge their plant they didn't want to have to pay taxes on it after the emergency was over.

This was agreeable to the treasury and the White House. But about this time the treasury and the congressional committees considering new taxes proposed a limit of 8 per cent profit on all army orders. This is the same profit limitation enforced on navy orders under the Vinson-Trammell act, which was inserted in the 1936 naval bill through an amendment by Congressman Tobey of New Hampshire. However, the army escaped any profit restriction on its contracts except for airplanes on which manufacturers can make a profit of 13 per cent.

Three Sets of Books.

THUS some manufacturers have done business with the army, where their profits are not limited, and refused to do business with the navy where their profits are kept down to 8 per cent. Furthermore, some airplane manufacturers working for both the army and navy have had to keep three sets of books, one for army orders, one for navy orders, and one for civilian work.

Therefore, the treasury move was to put both the army and navy on the same scale with an 8 per cent profit limitation. But industry balked like an aged mule. And even some contracts about to be signed were hastily withdrawn when the tax proposal was placed before congress.

The war department had just signed contracts with Boeing and North American Aviation to manufacture about 2,000 planes. The contracts were binding, but because the profit limitation was being reduced from 13 per cent to 8 per cent, the war department decided to hold them up, in fairness to the companies, until the entire question of profit limitation and tax amortization could be settled.

This halt in June and July was one reason for the slowness in getting airplane construction under way, despite hugh appropriations voted by congress.

(Editor's Note: Another column on co-operation between business and the government on national defense will follow shortly.)

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—An informal poll among newspapermen who are assigned to the Broadway beat reveals that Joe E. Lewis is the best liked comedian in town. Lewis is a floorshow worker rather than a musical comedy entertainer. He looks a great deal like old General Iron Pants Hugh Johnson. When he gets his teeth into a story, or a song, he shakes it as a terrier shakes a rag. It isn't what he says when he talks or sings. It's the way he does it.

A prime example of the Lewis "stuff" is his current monologue on radio advertisements. Joe maintains that most people don't know how to listen to radio. They don't know what to listen for. Most folks waste their time with the comedians, or the heroes of the love story, or the newer songs. But not Joe. "I cock my ear for those announcers when they come on," he says. "I want to find out where I can get that $300 for nothing, with no questions asked. I like to play around with those puzzles that Don Wilson of the Jack Benny show tosses at you. Sometimes I have to sit around and wait 15 minutes for those comedians to get off the air, but it's worth it. Then Don Wilson, the announcer, comes on. He talks sense. He doesn't fool around with gags. Of course, he doesn't tell you exactly where you can get it, but he gives you a hint. He says go out and look around until you see the big red letters on the box. That's the stuff I like to hear."

Of course, reading a comedian's lines in print mean nothing. They will mean a great deal to anyone sitting in on a session of the Lewis foolishness. It's the Lewis voice, and the Lewis manner, and the Lewis gestures.

STILL another poll recently concluded by Billboard, the theatrical trade weekly, points out that the three best known hotel men in New York are Frank Chase of the Algonquin, Bob Christenberry of the Astor, and Charles E. Rochester of the Lexington.

Chase has been identified with Broadway and the theatrical world for so long that he is accepted as a home grown product, though he is not a local boy. He is the author of two books which deal with the personalities of the thousands of famous guests that have come under his observation through the last two decades, and he knows more people by their first names than any four politicians you could name.

Bob Christenberry is a cultured southerner and an extremely well liked man about town. He came out of the war with a great record and only one arm. Despite this handicap he is an expert golfer.

Rochester is a Monroe, Louisiana, boy who made good in the big city. Among other things, he is noted for his wild game dinners, to which this reporter is occasionally bidden. He is also the man who inaugurated the Hawaiian vogue in Manhattan entertainment circles. When he isn't at his office on Lexington avenue or flying to the coast on one of his frequent jaunts, he is plodding around his upstate farm, the grounds of which are alive with rare species of ducks.

This Is Ohio

Ohio's present statehouse, when completed in 1861, was the largest of state capitols and nearly as large as the national capitol.

It was 22 years in the building —15 years spent in actual construction, at a total cost of $1,644,000. The cornerstone was laid July 4, 1839, by Governor Jeremiah Morrow, at the northeast corner. In February, 1840, the legislature suddenly repealed an act providing for erection of the building, and for six years the work was at a standstill. Then the old statehouse at the southwest corner of the square burned and the legislature approved completion of the new building.

A Farmer's Diary

Waiting for Frost

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"I HATE this time of year," remarked my friend who has hay fever, moving over so that I might sit down beside him on the edge of the watering trough. "I think I know just how that chicken feels." He pointed to a droopy moulting fowl, nearly bare of feathers.

I smiled. He did not. His eyes, I saw, were red and watering. His nose and lips were swollen. He spoke huskily, stopping often to sneeze and blow.

"The whole world gets monotonous at the end of every summer," he went on. "Life's just a long grind of dust and heat and drought and sweat and mosquitoes. I'm fed up. If I could afford it, I'd drive to Michigan and stay in the pine woods until after frost, away from this cussed ragweed."

"Isn't there any other cure?"

"Not really. I've spent enough on so-called 'cures' to take a long vacation. Some of 'em help, but nothing gets rid of the cause of the trouble—that irritating pollen that affects all the membranes of an allergic person's body. Why, today I've got an intense itching way deep in my ears and under my chin. Nothing can relieve it —and I can't forget it. A window was open in the night and I had to get up and close it. Then for hours I couldn't sleep—just laid awake with alternate sweating and chills."

"Does diet make any difference?"

"Yes, it does. I've laid off butter and cream and it seems to help. But I won't feel like myself again until after frost. Fellows as lucky as you can't appreciate what a nuisance the whole thing is."

"I'm sorry," I ventured. "I pity . . ."

He waved his hand irritably. "Chuck it! Only don't rave to me about the beauties of nature until this is over. How's your garden doing?"

"I picked a big basket of beefsteak tomatoes this morning," I told him. "Corn and tomatoes both taste right well. We have cabbage for slaw and the melons are looking up since these last rains. Potatoes won't be much of a crop, but if frost holds off . . ."

I stopped, remembering. He grinned, wryly.

"I wish," he said, "somebody'd find a good farm animal that'd relish ragweed diet and nothing else. If you ever hear of a breed like that, just let me know."

SAYS SOLDIERS LUCKY TO HAVE SUDDEN DEATH

Civil Population Dies Slowly From Lack of Vitamins In Daily Diet.

(By Associated Press)

RALEIGH, N. C.—To some, death will come quickly and perhaps with but a flash of pain. A bullet between the eyes, a direct hit by a bomb; a crumpled airplane whining toward the earth.

But the victims of the battlefields—even the soldiers who die lingeringly—may be the lucky ones, an outstanding biochemist said today.

For vitamins—or rather the lack of them—will doom thousands of the survivors of Europe's war to blindness, stunted growth, respiratory infection, and slow and agonized death, he added.

Thus, ironically, the slacker of this war may have more to fear from living than from a hero's death.

The biochemist, Prof. G. Howard Satterfield, of N. C. State college, has made a survey of the malnutrition which tags at the heels of war, and is convinced that the lack of vitamins will take an unprecedentedly heavy toll in Europe

So much manpower has been engaged in the present war, he said, that gardening and farmers have been neglected, and a shortage of fruits, leafy vegetables, and milk products is certain to result.

Even nations which have large food concentrations in storage will suffer from lack of vitamins, he continued, because vitamin-rich foods are the most perishable, and storage cannot prevent deterioration.

To picture what may follow in the wake of Europe's war, Professor Satterfield cited these examples of nutritional deficiencies in other wars

Neutral Denmark was stripped of its butter and much of its milk during the World war. The Danes were forced to use skimmed milk and butter substitutes without vitamins, and as a result the health of the nation was impaired. An epidemic of xerophthalmia, an eye disease, claimed many victims, particularly children Those affected were fed vitamin A, which brought temporary relief.

In the Russo-Japanese war, half of the 17,000 men in the besieged garrison at Port Arthur were down with scurvy at one time because vitamin C was lacking from their diet.

In the World war, a garrison at Ket-el-Amara in Mesopotamia was rapidly being cut down by scurvy. But the men saved their lives by eating two ounces of grass daily.

Some vitamins can be produced synthetically, but the cost is prohibitive for use on a large scale, he said. Vitamin A is not available in a pure state; vitamin B is priced at $800 a pound—more expensive than gold; vitamin C costs $40 a pound, he added.

TELL COMING MARRIAGE AT PRE-NUPTIAL EVENT

Miss Mary Ewing Discloses Engagement of Sister, LaVada, to John A. Dalton at Party For Miss Purdy.

WHEN Miss Mary Edith Ewing of Cleveland entertained with a pre-nuptial party for Miss Jean Purdy yesterday evening, the guests were surprised to learn of the approaching marriage of her sister, Miss LaVada Ewing, to John A. Dalton, jr. The affair was a dessert-bridge at the Ewing home on Rae avenue, and the hand-painted announcement cards were concealed under the pieces of cake served to the guests.

The wedding will be solemnized on Sept. 16 at 9:30 a. m. before the altar of St. Peter's Catholic church. The bride-elect will be attended by her two sisters, Miss Mary Edith and Miss Marjorie Ewing of Louisville, Ky., while Mr. Dalton has chosen his brother, Robert Dalton, to be his best man.

Dessert was served at a long table, centered with a miniature bridal pair and decorated with pink and blue appointments, and prizes in the bridge games were awarded to the honorees. The hostess presented her sister with a gift of silver, and Miss Purdy with an electrical gift.

Miss Purdy is the bride-elect of Carl McNeill of Canton, and she is being feted with another party this evening at the home of Miss Evelyn Yuncker on West Fourth street. Friday evening, Miss Purdy is planning to give a party for Miss Ewing at her home on Park avenue west.

Miss Ewing is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ewing, Rae avenue. A graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, she attended Ashland college and now is employed at the Ohio Public Service company. Mr. Dalton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dalton, sr., Vennum avenue, attended St. Peter's high school and was graduated from St. Joseph's college. He is an employe of the advertising department at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company now.

Shelby Girl Bride Of Verne Bowen; Wedded Saturday

The marriage of Miss June Stoffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Stoffer, Shelby, to Verne G. Bowen, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bowen, 399 Springmill street, was announced today. The ceremony was read Saturday at 7:30 p. m. at the parsonage of the First United Brethren church with Rev. Carl V. Roop officiating.

Miss Stoffer was attired in a burnt topaz crepe dress with brown accessories and a corsage of Talisman and Johanna Hill roses for the double ring ceremony. She was attended by Miss Martha Burkholder, Mansfield, who wore a black and white costume and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

Fred Gertel, Mansfield, was best man.

Dinner was served to members of the wedding party and relatives at the bride's home following the service.

The bride is a graduate of Harding high school, and Mr. Bowen is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, and is employed at the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

Will Wed In September

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Betty J. Sarka, above, was announced at a recent party by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Beal, 272 Grace street. She will become the bride of William J. Yasick, son of S. F. Yasick, Shelby, at St. Mary's Catholic church, Shelby, Sept. 21. Rev. Fr. McFadden will officiate. Miniature white cards on which the nuptial information was printed were distributed to 25 guests at the party.

Richard Swisher, Jeanette Maglott Married In City

Of interest to Mansfielders is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Jeanette Maglott, daughter of Mrs. Floy Maglott of Bellville, and Richard Swisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Swisher, who reside near Bellville. The double ring ceremony was solemnized at 2 o'clock last Saturday afternoon in the parsonage of the South Main Street Evangelical church, with Rev. C. L. Kern officiating.

The bride was attired in a costume suit of soldier blue with navy accessories, and she wore a shoulder corsage of rosebuds. Mr. and Msr. Raymond Barr of this city attended the couple, and Mrs. Barr wore a blue ensemble with black accessories and rosebud corsage.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McDermott on Sloane avenue. The refreshment table was set with crystal and centered with a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal pair.

Mr. and Mrs. Swisher took a wedding trip through some of the southern states, and are now residing with the bridegroom's parents. The former Miss Maglott is a graduate of Bellville high school, and Mr. Swisher graduated from Lexington high school. He now is employed at the Bellville Sand and Gravel company.

PLAN BREAKFAST FOR BRANCH ON SATURDAY

Affair Scheduled for South Park; Two Teas, Party, Dance to Supplement Regular Program of Activities.

THE OPENING GUN of the season will be fired by the program committee of the Mansfield branch of the American Association of University Women Saturday at 9:30 a. m. when members meet at South park for a membership breakfast. Mrs. R. Wayne Sutton is in charge of arrangements. Hostesses include Miss Louise Andrews, Mrs. R. D. Campbell, Miss Fannie Lew Eller, Mrs. Merritt Giles, Mrs. D. W. Horton, Miss Myra Lorimer, Miss Emily Palmer, Miss Ruth Louise Seybold, Mrs. S. B. Vinson, Miss Helen Bein and Mrs. W. L. Miller.

A tea on Oct. 1 will be the second event of the year with Miss Louise Krause, assisted by Mrs. Campbell, in charge at the Westbrook Country club. In November the group will have a guest meeting and dinner at the John Simpson cafeteria with Mrs. Frances Phillips presenting a program on "The Scene Changes."

The December meeting will be held at the Women's Club, and will also be a dinner session. "Our Task as A. A. U. Women in These Times" is the topic which Mrs. H. E. Baer will conduct at the Jan. 7 session following a dinner at the John Simpson Junior high school.

Jan. 25 has been named as the date for the mid-year dance with Mrs. George Ingram in charge. H. W. Holsinger will speak on "Narcotic Traffic" at the dinner meeting to be held in February at the Women's Club, while a dramatic program in charge of Mrs. J. E. Berno will be presented March 4 at the Congregational church. Dinner will be served at 6:15 p. m.

Party.

In April the John Simpson gymnasium will be the scene of a party with Mrs. V. A. Simpson in charge, while another program and dinner at the Women's Club will be an event of May 6. On June 3 the club will give a tea at Westbrook for senior girls with Ruth Dunham in charge.

Besides the regular association meetings there will be two special groups—the community problems group in charge of Mrs. L. C. Baumgardner and Miss Margaret DeWitt, and the creative arts group in charge of Miss Virginia Stark and Miss Elizabeth Hainer. The first group will meet with Mrs. Baumgardner, Courtright boulevard, Sept. 24, while the creative arts section will meet with Miss Stark, 417 Glessner avenue, Sept. 16.

Officers of the organization for the current year are Mrs. Merritt Giles, president; Mrs. Charles Kuntz, vice president; Miss Florence Robison, second vice president; Miss Edith Beck, secretary; Miss Wilma Snider, treasurer, and Mrs. K. E. Buhr, last resident president.

Committees are: program, Mrs. Kuntz, Mrs. Roy Rehder, Mrs. Howard Diller, Miss Hainer, and Miss Eiler, music chairman; social, Mrs. G. B. Colby, Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. L. C. Nigh, Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. Ingram, Miss Krause, and Miss Dunham; high school activities, Miss Beatrice McLees, Mrs. P. W. Endriss, Miss Anita Strauch, Miss Emma Waring, and Mrs. P. R. Sarbry; membership, Mrs. R. J. Welsh, Mrs. D. W. Horton, Mrs. R. D. Lindsay, Mrs. Homer Swift, Mrs. M. D. Harnly, Miss Mary Jane Curtiss, and Mrs. R. M. Calene; and budget, Mrs. R. M. Gage, Mrs. L. B. Bourns, and Mrs. Calene.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

IF YOU'RE going away to school within the next few weeks, you're probably one of the busiest young women in town these days—with all sorts of last minute things to do to your wardrobe. . . . If you're looking for some casual campus and sports dresses, you'll be delighted with the selection of appropriate frocks now being shown at the downtown stores. The coat situation is equally pleasing, and you'll find shoes to be right smart this year too. . . . Incidentally, many of the styles I saw while shopping yesterday would be adaptable to the needs of the business girl as well as to those of the co-eds.

Combinations of wool and velveteen are very good for early fall, and they probably will be all winter long. . . . One style had a gay plaid skirt with a rayon velveteen jacket, scalloped in front and buttoned with plaid covered buttons, while another featured a military jacket of velveteen with a demure detachable white bengaline collar. . . . Both of these can be purchased in brown, black or wine. . . . In fact, plaid woolens seem to be well up in front in the fashion parade. . . . The "hopscotcher" is a soft checked wool plaid designed with slim lines and contrasting wide leather belt. . . . It comes in shades of rust, green and blue. . . . Stripes also are favorites, and one style now on display downtown has them running horizontally in the bodice and diagonally in the skirt. Velveteen buttons and belt lend contrast to this dress, which comes in shades of gray and tan. . . . Another striped classic has vivid shades of green, wine, brown and blue cascading from the neckline to hem, while brass buttons and buckle really make it shine.

For the more dressy occasion—whether it be a sorority rush tea or a starlit hour—you'll be able to find just the right dress if you look around in the local shops now. . . . You'll be most gorgeous and graceful in a dress of rayon velveteen—which features a gored skirt and dainty lace edged collar and cuffs. . . . It comes in black, wine, brown and laurel green. . . . In printed rayor French crepe, you'll certainly be a hit—especially if you're wearing a dress I saw of a clever apple print skirt and solid color blouse, topped with a printed jacket. . . . And you can get it in combinations of lipstick red and navy, wild moss green with brown and henna rose with wild moss green.

THE CLOTH COATS this year are very good-looking, so if you're anticipating the purchase of one, you're in luck. . . . There are many styles of fur-trimmed ones—some having the tuxedo front trim, others with large fur buttons and pockets, and many with large collars of such fluffy furs as wolf, fox and raccoon. . . . Most of the untrimmed styles this season button up high with peaked collars—and fitted and swagger models are equally important.

* * *

BACK-TO-SCHOOL SHOE WARDROBE: Most any co-ed will need a number of pairs of shoes with which to start off her college semester on the right foot. . . . Sports styles to wear with knee-high socks, sweaters and skirts and boxcoat suits. . . . Casuals and spectators for her wool frocks, tailored suit and corduroy jumper outfit. . . . Date and dress shoes with her dressy frocks, costume suit and fur coat. . . . And the spectators and sports seem to be calling forth the most enthusiasm just now. . . . The spectators have V-throats or are classics—with some popular stub toes. . . . They come in suede with alligator or calf and the heels are either pyramid, plain, cuban or college. . . . The sports shoes feature box toes, square toes, wing tips, and gumbo crepe, nap rubber ramp or leather soles. . . . The colors are deep raven black, rich dark brown, moss green, port wine and antique tan (a mellow bootmaker tan, borrowed from masculinity).

* * *

BUT no matter what your dress may be this fall, you'll want to be sure of a background of daintiness and alluring loveliness. . . . That sweet-smelling perfume, "Friendship's Garden," now is available in a complete line of toiletries to help you solve this problem. . . . Starting with bath salts and finishing with a last minute touch of cologne. . . . The packages are quaint with colonial figures in pink and blue designs, and a very desirable treasure box contains talc, toilet water, sachet and a cake of soap. . . . Oh yes, and the box will make a perfect one for gloves or hankies when the contents are gone.

NECESSARY ADDED ATTRACTIONS: Other important requisites for any college girl's wardrobe include zipper garment bags, cellophane hat boxes, shoe, glove and hosiery containers covered with gay chintz or wallpaper; identifying name tags for clothing—and of course, sewing kits for those loose buttons and stocking runs.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 6251.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10¢ and 25¢.

MEET TUESDAY.

Mrs. Paul Boothisberger led devotions yesterday when members of the Helpers circle of the First Lutheran church met at the parish house. After the business meeting vacation reminiscences were given. Refreshments were served. Hostesses were Miss Georgianna Chidsey, Mrs. James Steward, Mrs. Helen Hoffman, Mrs. Allen Boughton and Mrs. Mabel Charles. The next meeting will be Oct. 1 at the parish house.
